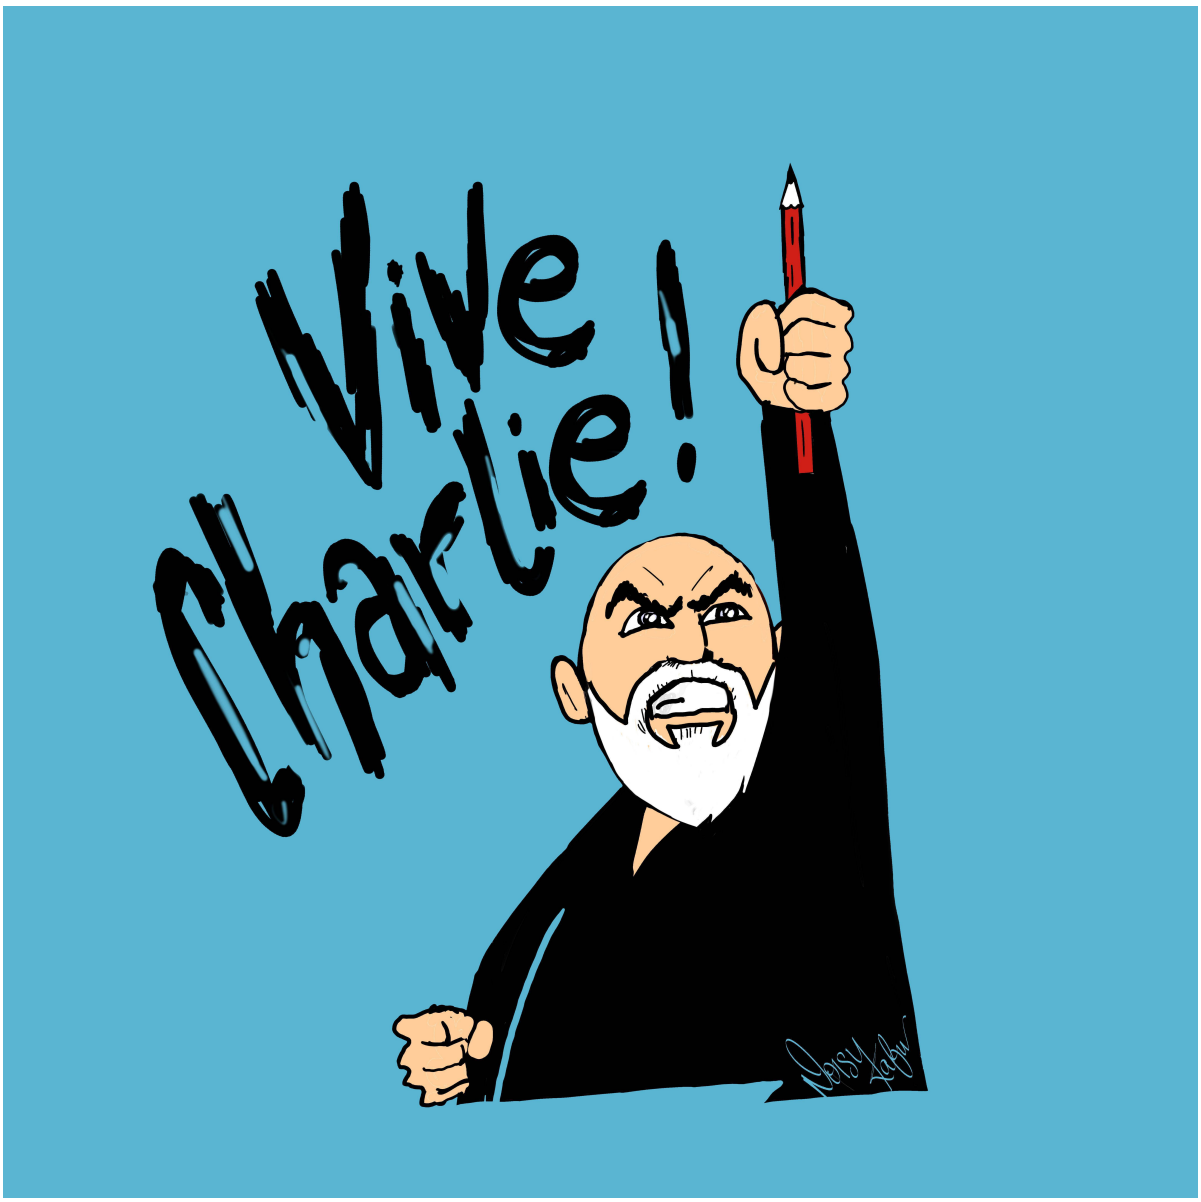
Issue 09

April 1st 2015

Vive Charlie!

Weekly Online Satire Magazine in Tribute to

Charlie Hebdo



REST IN PEACE

Stephane Charbonnier
Jean Cabut
Bernard Verlhac
Georges Wolinski
Philippe Honore
Elsa Cayat
Bernard Maris
Michel Renaud
Mustapha Ourrad
Ahmed Merabet
Frederic Boisseau
Franck Brinsolaro

Vive Charlie!

PAGE 3 MODEL

Old Holborn

There are 60million of us but only 646 of them

Britain's Vilest Troll - Daily Mail. Award winning Columnist, Satirist, Libertarian legend. Champion of Free Speech and a Free Society.

I had planned some fantastic April 1st hoaxes for you all today, dear readers. I was going to announce my season ticket to watch Liverpool play at Anfield, my membership of the Socialist Workers Party and my conversion to Salifist Islam but lo and behold, some things even more unbelievable has been going on this week that I simply cannot let pass without comment.

Now we are headed towards Polling Day, when the morons decide who gets to rule over their pointless lives and help themselves to half their wages for the next five years. I've been keeping an eye out for the classic gaffes that a panicking politician faced with de-selection or removal from Parliament is always likely to make. I'm not disappointed.

The leaders debates kicked off with my favourite grit in the oyster, Jeremy Paxman, landing blow after blow on the hapless leaders of both the Tory Party and the Labour Party. Neither came out well, but rest assured, that won't stop them on their relentless pursuit of power – our first past the post faux democracy will ensure that even if 80% of the electorate don't vote for them, one or the other will be given the keys to Downing Street to do with as they please for the next half decade. What did stand out was a particularly flippant remark from the moronic leader of Labour when quizzed over the leadership contest between him and his admittedly half competent brother David:

"I chose the Party over family."

A cold shudder ran down my spine as the words left his train crash of a mouth.

One of the reasons I write for this esteemed organ is that I stand firmly against any form of collectivism, political, religious or other. I'm pro individual to my very core and the thought of the levers of power political party over his own flesh and blood brings flashbacks to all the war and horror of the 20th Century, where collectivist governments managed to kill in excess of 230 Million citizens worldwide in their pursuit of the "Party Ideal" - weird Ed is no different. Built from a Fabian mould, educated at the school of Politically Correct, Ed has been placed in this position by the very people we spent a century trying to destroy.

Which brings me suitably to my next topic.

What on EARTH are we going to do about Katie Hopkins?

Now, on a personal level, I find her a little too near the Thatcher model – all for freedoms as long as she is the one telling us all what to do, but it's been quite a week/month/year. She is certainly drawing enemy fire. At my count, she has now been reported to the Police for offending (usually by someone offended on someone else's behalf proxy) the following:

The Scots – by calling them "Jocks".

The Disabled – by calling a stripper with no anus an arsehole.

Fat bastards – by calling them fat.

Suicidal Murdering Nutcases – for calling them suicidal murdering nutcases.

And finally, this week, the best of the best, she has been reported to the Police for "race hate" by the most duplicitous, sanctimonious and hypocritical bastard I can think of; the MP for Rochdalistan (Rape Central) Simon Danczuk. I repeat, reported to the Police for pointing out to Simon that Muslim men of Pakistani origin did an awful lot of raping of underage girls in the very

Simon Danczuk
@SimonDanczuk

For the record, free speech is not an unassailable right. It's a privilege to be treated with care celebrating a crescent flag waving, grinning Pakistan Day with earlier this week.

12:23 PM · 31 Mar 15

If that wasn't enough, the oily bastard decided to fire up a tweet pointing out that as far as he is concerned, our free speech is not a right, just a mere privilege that could be taken away at any time – by him and the Parliament he represents. Words fail me. "Je suis Charlie" indeed.

You might not like Brand Katie, you might not agree with all she has to say, but for the future of this country and all our children, you'd better defend her right to damn well say it before the man who puts Party ahead of family and the votes of his Pakistani constituents before the rights and freedoms millions died defending just 70 years ago take over the reins of power.

BURKAPAPA
#9
by Noisykafir

Afghan woman killed by mob for blasphemy was 'innocent'

A woman killed by an angry mob in front of police in the Afghan capital for allegedly burning a copy of Islam's holy book was wrongly accused, Afghanistan's top criminal investigator said on Sunday.

Mobile phone footage circulating on social media shows police at the scene did not save the 27-year-old woman, Farkhunda, who was beaten with sticks and set on fire by a crowd of men in central Kabul in broad daylight on Thursday.

"Last night I went through all documents and evidence once again, but I couldn't find any evidence to say Farkhunda burnt the Holy Quran," General Mohammad Zahir told reporters at her funeral on Sunday. "Farkhunda was totally innocent." The top criminal investigator promised to punish all those involved and said 13 people, including eight police officers, had already been arrested.

The killing was condemned by the President Ashraf Ghani and other officials, but also drew praise from some quarters, including from a prominent cleric, who asserted the men had a right to defend their Muslim beliefs at all costs.

Farkhunda was a teacher of Islamic studies, according to her brother, who denied media reports that she had been mentally ill. He said this was a made-up defence by their father, who wanted to protect the family after police told them to leave the city for their own safety.

"My father was frightened and made the false statement to calm people down," said Najibullah, who is changing his second name to Farkhunda in memory of his sister.

Hundreds of people attended her funeral on Sunday chanting "we want justice" and her coffin was carried by women, a rare act of protest in a male-dominated society. The crowd, shouting "Allah o Akbar" (God is greatest), demanded the government bring the killers to justice....

In other news, Katie Hopkins was reported to Police for pointing out that the members of a convicted Pakistani Muslim grooming gang were Pakistani Muslims. Angry Muslims and progressives gathered outside her house brandishing placards with slogans such as "stone the bitch" and "Kill those who point out Pakistani Muslim grooming gangs are made up of Pakistani Muslims".

MP Simon Danczuk who contacted the Police was reported to have offered a bounty on her head of one year's free subscription to his favourite hardcore porn website, following approval from his wife. His wife refused to join the protest as she claimed that, as the crowd was predominately made up of Pakistani Muslims and she likes to leave only her nipples to the imagination, there was a very good chance she might become the next victim of a Pakistani grooming gang.

Her husband confirmed that as the Police don't like to prosecute these types of cases, he would prefer instead to incite a lynch mob against Katie Hopkins as this could secure a few votes from Pakistani grooming gang members and their facilitators in the Social Services and Police.

Big Al Khamenei, the Supreme Asshole of Iran, today announced he would be stepping up his nuclear weapons development upon discovering secret documents confirming Israel has bought a second hand Death Star from Darth Vader. He further claims that it is currently being equipped with an industrial strength Zionist ray gun, capable of transforming every Muslim into an atheist at the simple press of a button.

Journalist, photographer and broadcaster. Tech writer @Forbes. Presenter of C4's Dispatches: 'Truth About Hospital Food'. Author of 'Notes From A Hospital Bed'. Mark uses Twitter to debate and discuss issues at @markgsparrow.

Russell's brand image may not be quite what you think it is

© Mark Sparrow 2015

Next time you hear a politician complaining about the media, go out and buy a newspaper. A free press is about your only guarantee of freedom.

Last Sunday the clocks went forward but I thought they'd actually gone forward three days instead of just one hour. The first thing that made me think April 1 had come three days early was Russell Brand's suggestion that the state should take over The Sun so it could be run as 'a paper for the people'. To be honest, that's news to me as I thought The Sun was supposed to be running the state but let's just stop a moment to consider what state-run media might actually mean.

When the world's fourth-most-influential thinker (according to a poll of Prospect Magazine's readers – no, I've never read it either) suggests that we have state-controlled media, you really do have to start thinking whether the bearded wonder has gone back on the hard stuff. Can you imagine what sort of newspaper we'd have if it was run by assorted Marxists, eco-loons, vegans and hard-left authoritarians? Actually, probably better to forget that as The Guardian is still on sale, despite losing £20m a year despite the trust that owns the paper being based in the Cayman Islands.

No, let's just consider how a state-controlled press landscape might look. For starters, the state would have to buy up the entire press and every broadcaster because any media competition couldn't be tolerated if you wanted to be absolutely sure that the population was forced to digest the turgid crap that used to be printed in Soviet-era papers such as Pravda and Izvestia. It would be a diet of tractor-production statistics and predictions for the turnip harvest. If the Charlie Hebdo massacre has taught us anything, we need even more free speech and transparency rather than less.

Now, I can sense a bit of fidgeting at the back of the class as a couple of Russell Brand sympathisers are dying to ask me how free our press really is with the likes of Rupert Murdoch controlling a big slice of the media pie. Well, Rupert may own a big bit of the UK media but there are plenty of other sources, Group and The Guardian offering alternative views. So it's not as if there isn't plenty of competition and choice. In fact, the UK has quite a vibrant media sector and probably could have an even brighter one if the BBC didn't have such a strangle-hold on radio and a good slice of the tv market via its compulsory tv tax.

And that neatly brings me on to the second piece of April Fool lunacy that I read on Sunday. Alex Salmond, that well-known standard bearer of libertarian thinking, says the BBC in Scotland needs to be under the control of the Scottish government in order to 'resolve' its anti-SNP bias. That's right... a politician wants state-controlled radio and tv in order to shape public opinion in his party's image. If that's not a recipe for a one-party state then I don't know what is. I mean, can you just imagine Scotland being a one-party state. Oh wait!

The truth is that those who seek public office are often so convinced that their vision of the future is the right one, they are sometimes willing to stamp out opposition and to do their best to ensure that a free press can't hold them to scrutiny. I think that most politicians don't really believe in real democracy if they were being really honest. If you offered most politicians the chance to hold office for life, should they be successfully elected, then I reckon at least half of them would bite your proverbial hand off. The sad reality is that few leaders really believe in genuine democracy because once they've experienced the adrenaline rush of having their own limousine and motorcycle outriders, power becomes addictive and begins to corrupt even the fairest of souls. Very few people entering politics aren't tribal and many will go through any amount of intellectual contortions to convince themselves that their party's policies are the right ones.

So what might Russell Brand's version of The Sun look like if he was given editorial control? For starters, page three would probably have his barechested body on it and I dare say just about every other page in the paper too. When Brand says he'd like to see The Sun run as 'the people's paper' you just have to wonder what sort of people he has in mind. For all his unintelligible blathering, underneath the back-combed hair, artfully trimmed beard and carefully arranged chest hair, there beats the heart of a despot. Russell thinks he knows what is good for you and me, and by God we're going to get it. And one way that we would be softened up for the world according to Brand would be to take over the media and feed us as much bullshit as he could get away with.

Of course, media control has been tried before by just about every tinpot dictator who has ever wrested power from the jaws of democracy. It always ends in tears. So, beware the ideologue. The only way we can have a properly functioning democracy is to have as diverse and as free a press as possible. We need more voices and more opinions; the last thing this country needs is any politician or Poundland Che Guevara getting their sticky little mitts on anything that resembles a newspaper or a broadcaster.

I don't understand why you want me to get this ready, we have no weapons grade material to make it fizz?

The difference is that Obama is now in office and he is determined to help us make a bomb because he hates Jews as much as we do

Theresa May says UK will not tolerate extremists who reject our values

webuyanyvote.com

27/03/17

VIVE CHARLIE EXCLUSIVE

The remaining 1D band members talk to Vive Charlie about why Zayn really left.

Many rumours have been circulating about why Zayn left 1D, so we decided to talk to the remaining boys to find out what really happened. In a startling admission, the boys confirmed that being a four piece band will be much easier as they can all ride Nemesis or share a mini-cab and a Kit-Kat without descending into a huge argument about who gets left out.

However, the argument that kept rearing its head on a daily basis was that Zayn continually kept changing his mind on which direction was the "One Direction".

Harry claimed that every time they arrived at a new venue Zayn would point in a different direction and say "this is the one direction". So we flew the boys to their last 10 locations and asked them to show us which direction Zayn had pointed. It soon became very clear that Zayn had been pointing towards Mecca. When we pointed this out, and with the help of a calculator, the boys quickly starting putting two and two together.

Liam confirmed that he had long suspected that Zayn's allocation of complimentary concert tickets for "Andy", were in fact for Anjem Choudary.

Louis said Zayn had definitely become more extreme in recent months as he had started putting Tabasco Sauce on his Sugar Puffs.

By this point Niall was visibly shaking and blurted out that he had not spoken to Zayn in months since he caught him in their play room with a 1D action figure set.

He described how the Zayn figure was draped in a black flag whilst Zayn beheaded the other four figures, saying "Allan Ackbar" over and over again.

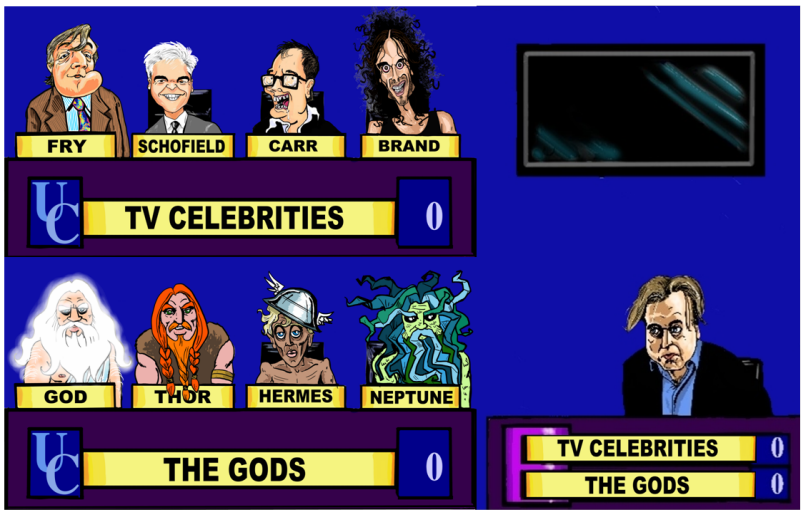
We left the boys dismayed and confused as to why Zayn would want to join ISIS, when we pointed out he could easily have had 72 virgins at any time, from all the groupies at their concerts.

Universally Challenged

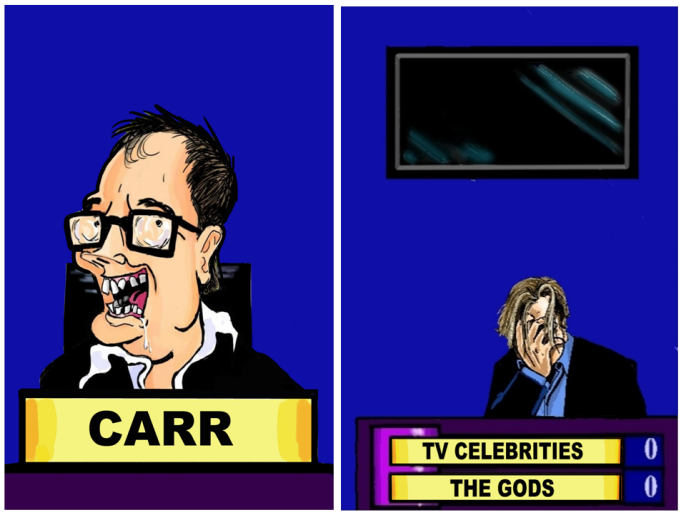
Hosted by Christopher Hitchens

Hitch: This week's teams are TV Celebs and The Gods, with team captains Fry and God. OK, question one. What is the main factor in creating terrorism?

BUZZZ TV Celebs, Brand: Global warming means people cannot grow crops so turn to terrorism instead.

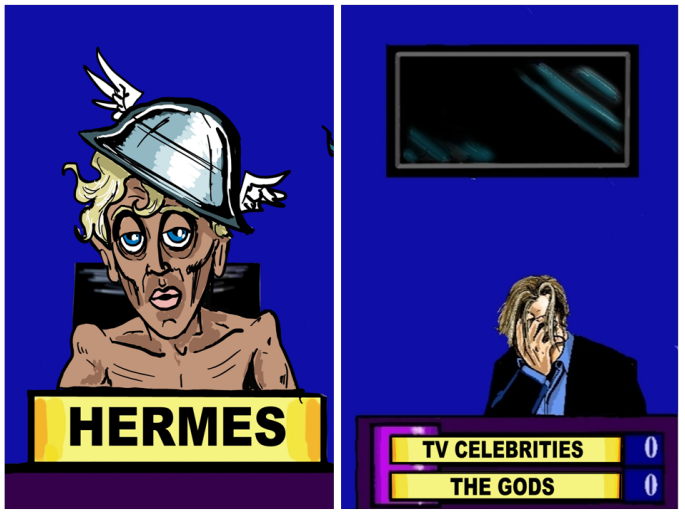


Hitch: OK, question two. What is the main cause of war in the modern age?



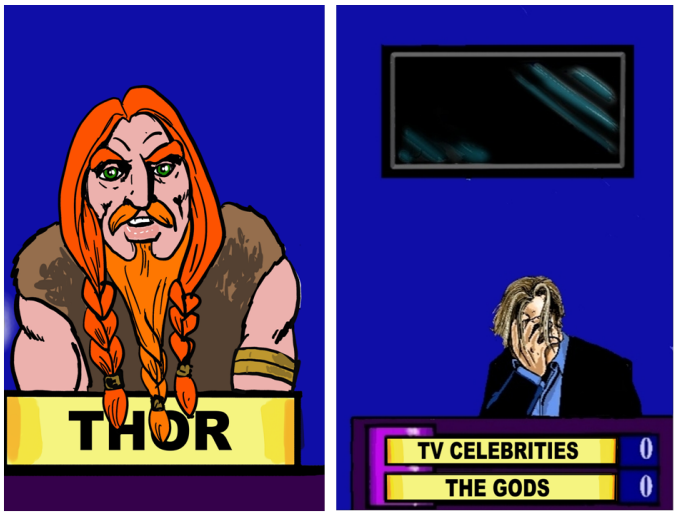
BUZZZ TV Celebs, Carr: Frustration and withdrawal symptoms from giving up smoking.

Hitch: Question three. What is the fastest way to get from Kings Cross to Parliament Square?

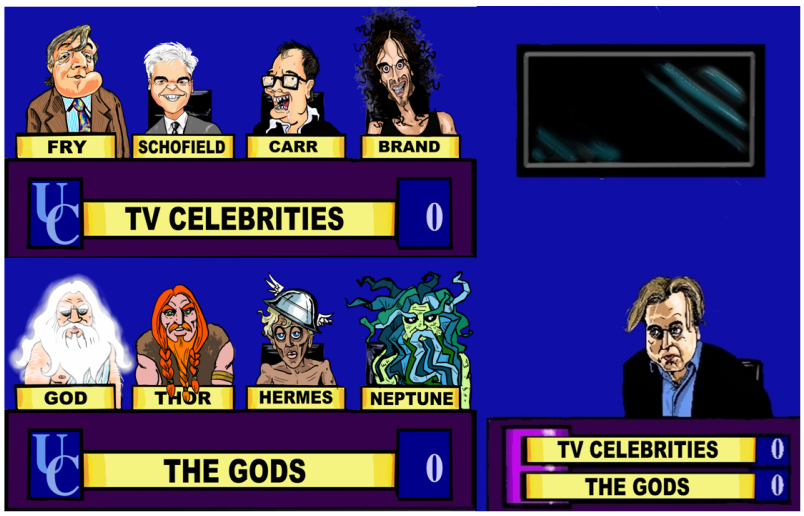


BUZZZ The Gods, Hermes: Winged sandals?

Hitch: What climatic conditions cause thunder and lightning?



BUZZZ The Gods, Thor: I am the God of the sky and thunder so it's all down to me!



Hitch: What are the primary factors that facilitate social evolution?

BUZZZ The Gods, God: A global flood that wipes out all living things except those that Noah lets on his ark.

Hitch: What causes tsunamis?

BUZZZ The Gods, Neptune: Me!

Universally Challenged

Hosted by Christopher Hitchens

JIHADI JOHN

I will cut the head off this filthy kafir if you English pig dogs do not revert back to full denial mode about the Muslamic grooming gangs. Since you've stopped our grooming gangs we have had no choice but to join ISIS to get our fill of sex slaves

nus Presents

A remake of Al-Jolson's

Jazz Hands

Wednesday 1st April 2015

Solihull Wimmins Centre for the Anxious

For One Night Only

For Women Only

Feminist Jazz Hands

Free entry with either your NUS or FemiNazi membership card

WARNING

This event is not for individuals that are easily offended by extreme progressive views or extreme political correctness. However, you are expected to turn a blind eye to racism and sexism. If we can restrict the audience to those that share these values then it will be a nice show solidarity and not trigger any anxiety.

Timmy nice but Dhimmi

Timmy nice but Dhimmi

Dear Vatican: hablás al 'pedo': the stench of the Catholic Church

By @StaunchA

The original purpose of this article was to give an update on the sex-abuse scandal, as pertaining to the Catholic Church. This is because Australia, somewhat belatedly, is in the midst of a Royal Commission into the institutional responses to child abuse. So, over the last few weeks I've been reading, and reading. If anyone wants to know anything about Catholic priests fiddling with little boys' winkies, I'm your person.

The trouble is there's nothing new about this enquiry. It's same ole', same ole'. It was normal practice for the Church to shift offenders around, allowing them to abuse again. And the senior clergy covered up for offenders. They did so, because the Vatican told them to. I believe they call it observing Canon Law. 'We'll sort this' they argue, in a fashion not dissimilar to the criminal world - except they failed dismally.

The only really new thing about this is that Cardinal Pell, Australia's chief concealer (since he was Archbishop of Sydney AND Melbourne) has already been given his promotion and whisked off to Rome before the Royal Commission is over. This is because Pell is a spring chicken as far as Cardinals go, so it is likely a preemptive move in case Australians, quite rightly, call for his resignation as they did for Cardinal Law in the US and Cardinal Brady in Ireland. And although requested, the Vatican has refused to send the documents on child sex-abuse, despite it being a Royal Commission for (St) Pete's sake.

So Pell's now safely in Rome, sorting out their finances and fitting out his new office. 2.2 million Euros he spent! Quite a sum, as far as rewards go. I can hear it now, Frances undoubtedly patted him on the back, with a blank cheque of course, and probably said something like, 'Well done, amigo. It could have been a lot worse'. Well perhaps it is deserved. If the survey I read, claiming that up to 50% of priests are failing in their vow of celibacy at any given time, then priests like Cardinal Pell have succeeded in covering up for a grand total of 48%. Well worth a new position at the Vatican, which coincidently, is out of the reach of the (not very long arm) of the law. He's safe now. And he's obviously the best person to manage the Vatican's finances, since he's proven his worth by spending $AUS1,500,000 to get out of paying $100,000 to settle with one of the claimants.

Commentators shriek that this abuse constitutes a 'pattern' of scandal and cover-up, the stench of which pervades every corner of the world that the Catholic Church has sowed its wild oats (so to speak). Well, it's worse than that my friend. This pattern of scandal and cover-up, not only reaches every corner of the world, but extends back for say, 2,000 years. This isn't the first scandal and it won't be the last.

Since its inception, the Church has been consistently rocked with scandals such as mafia links, supporting the Nazis, smuggling money, corruption, prostitution rings, rampant homosexuality, orgies, illegitimate children, murder plots, baby theft & trafficking... Wait a minute, wait a minute – getting a bit confused – are we still talking about the Church? Even sex-abuse scandals are nothing new. They can be traced back as far as Constantine.

So it's not reiteration of what we already know that's needed here; no more reports into the report, reminiscent of the public service. It's solutions, solutions, that's what's needed. That way, if my son (heaven forbid) elects to believe in a god, as taught by the Christian Church, I won't have a panic attack every Sunday morning when I send him off to hang out with, 'turn a blind eye', er I mean 'turn the other cheek' to nuns and paedophile priests. Because this one's not going away. The phrase 'pedo priest' has already become part of everyday vernacular. Something definitive has to be done. And I know it's a little presumptive of me, being an atheist and all, but I'm offering a real solution for the Catholics; a positive act which would prove the clergy's commitment to God and restore the Church's credibility in the eyes of the believers.

Bring back the eunuch I say. Why not? It's in the Bible isn't it? I want to see some real commitment to God, for the good of the Church and as restitution for the millions (yes, millions!) of lives that have been ruined. I can't speak for the 65,000 people in Australia who may have a claim for a measly few thousand dollars each, but I would hazard a guess that when it was revealed how much Pell spent on his office alone, I wouldn't be surprised if the victims felt physically sick.

'...and there are eunuchs for the sake of the Kingdom of Heaven. Let anyone accept this who can' (Matthew 19:12). The rationale behind this is thought to be because women are the temptresses, the source of sin. Oh, darn! It's always our fault isn't it? Does this sound like any other religion we know? Well, in the light of the scandal, let this verse include the children too.

Well, as I said, it's in the Bible. This is the book the churches are all fixated upon – and it's in the New Testament no less – so it's still 'valid'. And it's a win/win. The children will be saved – from Catholic priests anyway – and the Church will be saved. And not only that, Christians from other denominations will flock to the Catholic Church because it will be the one church where mums and dads can send their ankle biters off to boarding school and know they'll be in good hands.

Ok, ok, a modern version of the eunuch then. Say, chemical castration. It's reversible so if any priest wishes to depart the fold, no harm done. I understand there are a few side-effects, but, trust me, it's nothing us women don't expect to endure at some time in our lives. It's a small price to pay for the good of the Church. Because, if they don't do something, the reputation of the Church is done for. There's been scandal after scandal. South America is just looking into it and Africa is next. We can expect to see a good couple of decades of this, yet. And still, it won't stop them. That's my bet.

So, that's my suggestion. Put up, or go away. Show some real commitment to celibacy, the Church's adherents, and above all, the Kingdom of Heaven. Cut 'em off for Jesus! Children need to be safe from this particular brand of sacerdotal attention that goes beyond the call of duty. Otherwise, admit, once and for all, there never was any proscription on Jesus' part to be celibate in the first place. But they're not going to admit that are they?

VIVE CHARLIE EXCLUSIVE

ISIS SHOCKER

Benjamin Netanyahu has shocked the ISIS leadership by dramatically reducing their media budget following two whole weeks of no new You Tube beheading, burning or massacre videos.

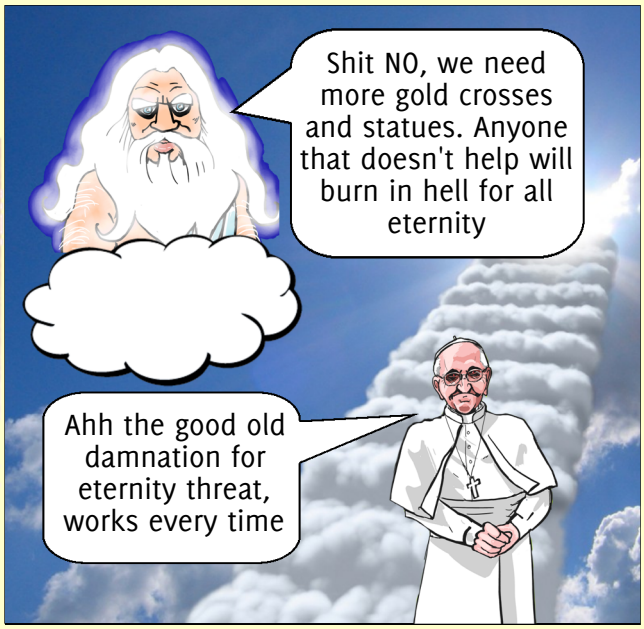
In a secret meeting with the Editor of Vive Charlie Bibi confirmed that he was "extremely disappointed" that in the run up to elections in Israel, ISIS only attacked a museum, but no synagogues or kosher supermarkets.

However, he did confirm that in the interests of animal welfare, particularly goats, the lube budget would remain unaffected.

A spokessavage from ISIS confirmed that whilst the media budget cut was a huge blow, at least he could console his fellow savages with the fact they would not face the horrifying prospect of another lube shortage, like the one of May 2014.

GOD SQUAD

I need you to get the boys together and go on a push to raise funds
Why God? We are rich beyond imagination. Do you want to feed the poor?

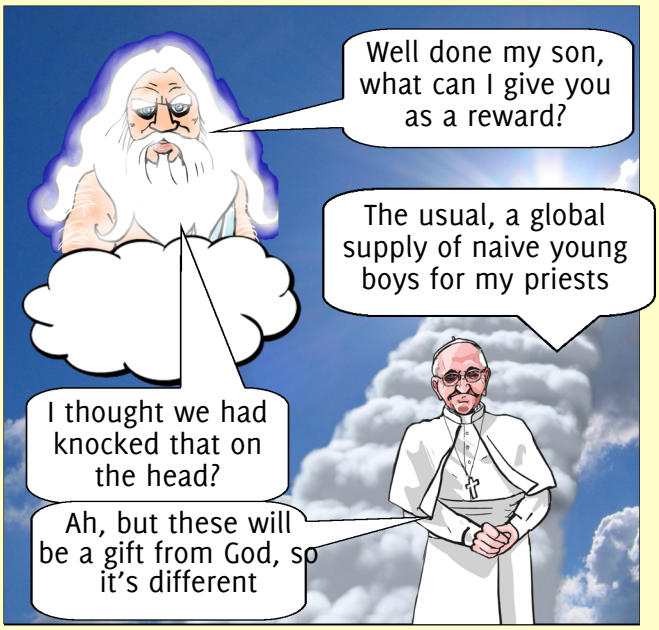


Shit NO, we need more gold crosses and statues. Anyone that doesn't help will burn in hell for all eternity
Ahh the good old damnation for eternity threat, works every time

What's happening boss?
I want to send you on a mission from God
Helping the poor?
No, exploiting the poor as usual
JESUS LOVES U

What do I need to do?
Get as much gold and cash as possible
But poor people don't have those things
Just threaten them with eternal damnation and they'll come up with the goods
JESUS LOVES U

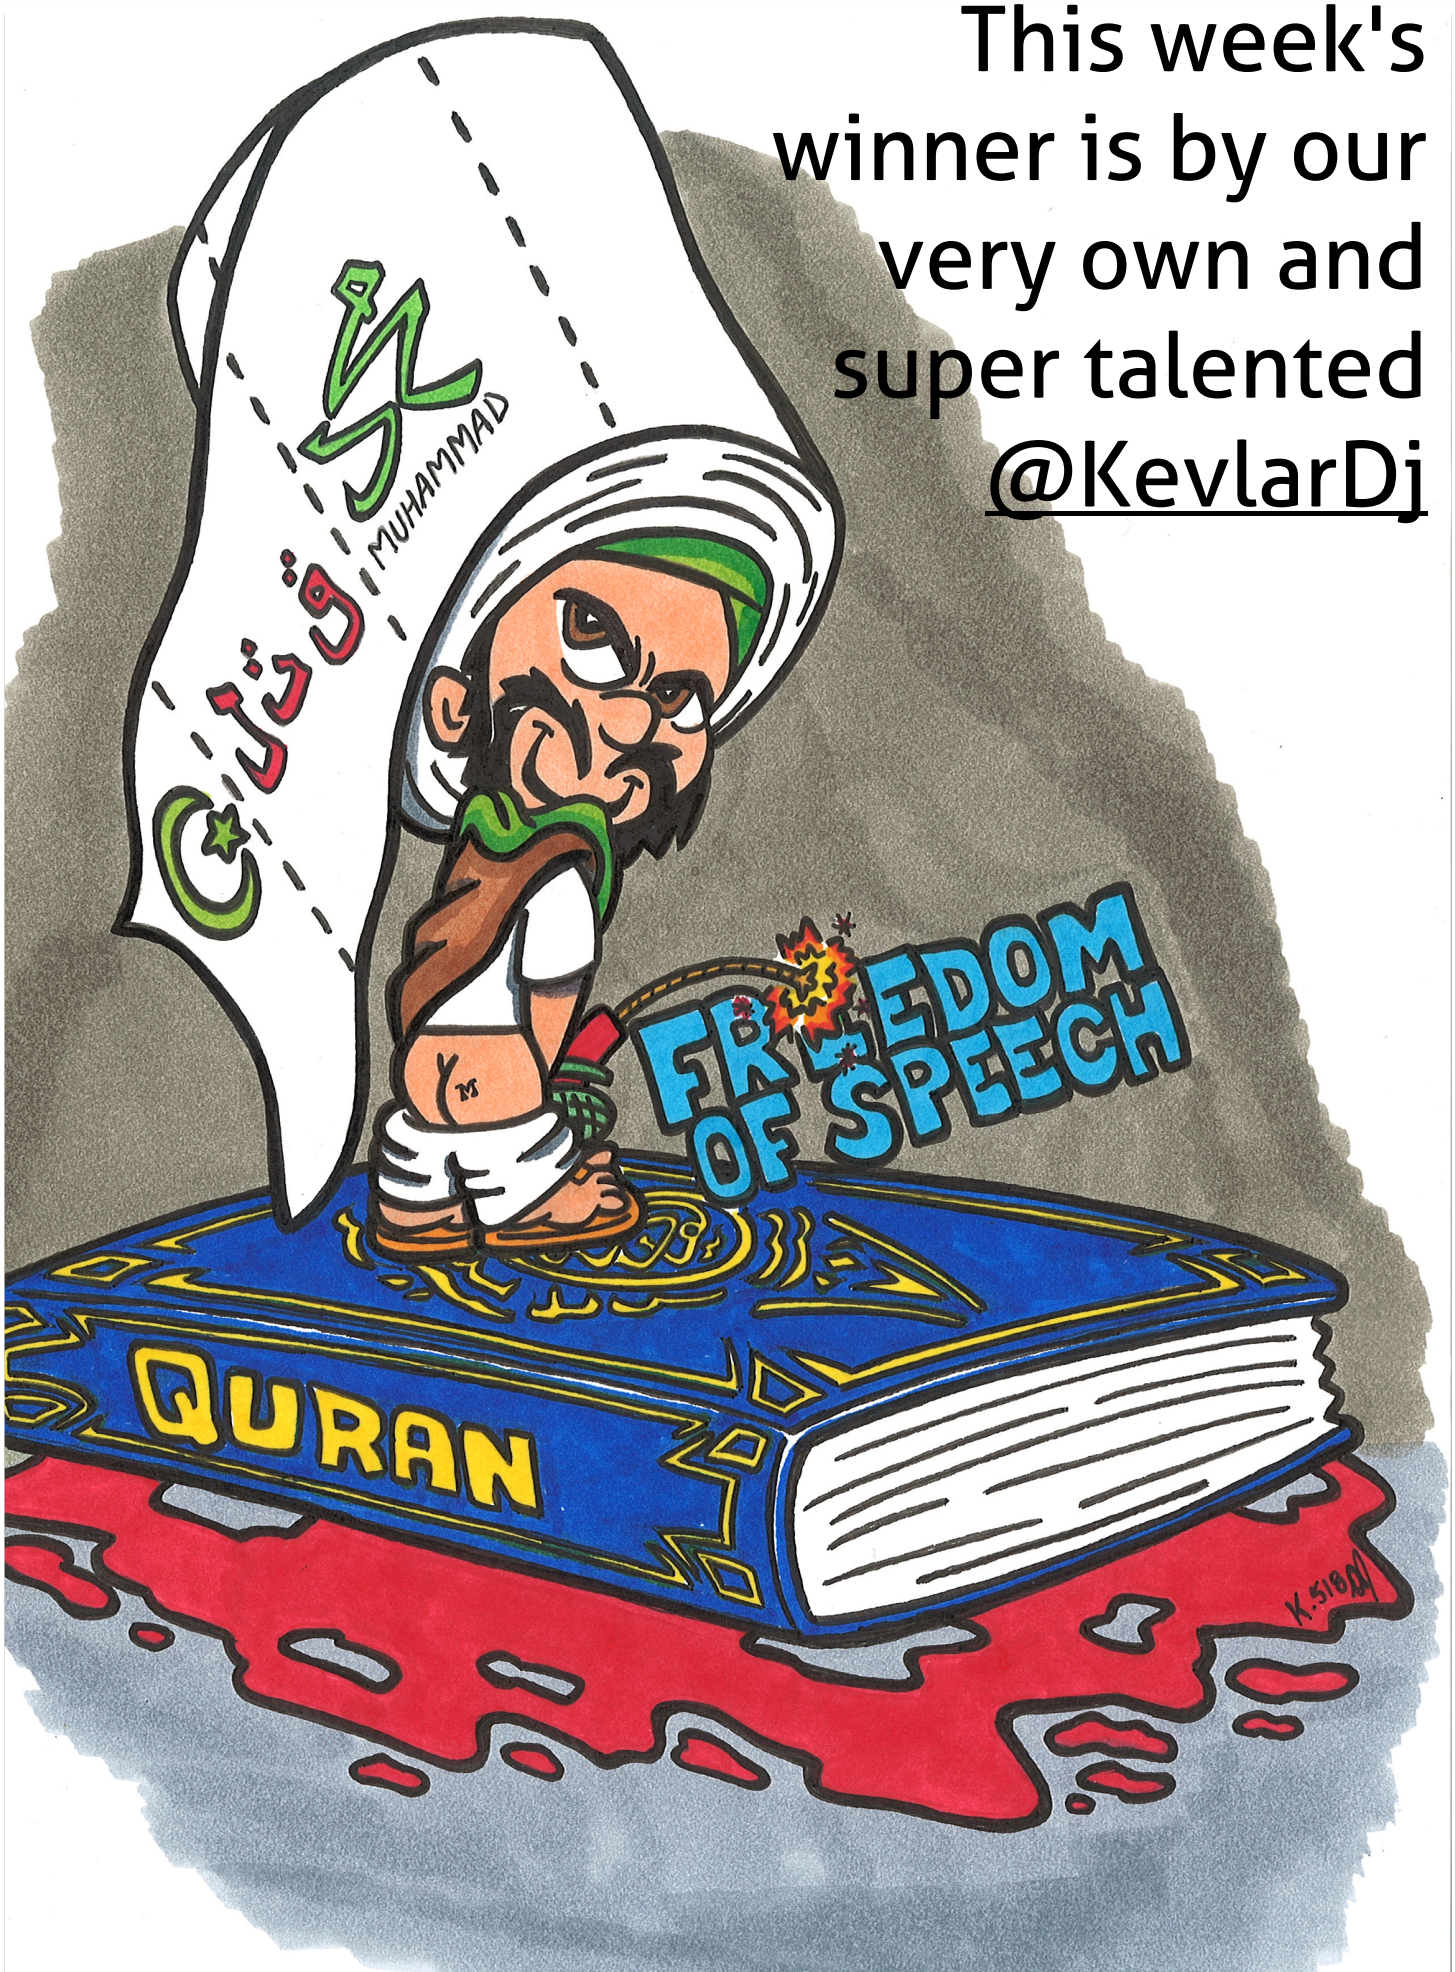
Hey bro what's going on? Kirk's been on TV
It was God's idea to get more cash and gold for the church
Well it's working, everyone is out stealing
Well they are damned if they do and damned if they don't



Well done my son, what can I give you as a reward?
The usual, a global supply of naive young boys for my priests
I thought we had knocked that on the head?
Ah, but these will be a gift from God, so it's different

Draw Mohammed Day

This week's winner is by our very own and super talented @KevlarDj



Robert Spencer is the director of Jihad Watch and author of the New York Times bestsellers The Politically Incorrect Guide to Islam (and the Crusades) and The Truth About Muhammad. His latest book is Arab Winter Comes to America: The Truth About the War We're In. Follow him on Twitter here. Like him on Facebook here.

Why Jihad Watch?

Robert Spencer explains the reasons behind Jihad Watch and its purpose

Why Jihad Watch? Because non-Muslims in the West, as well as in India, China, Russia, and the world over, are facing a concerted effort by Islamic jihadists, the motives and goals of whom are largely ignored by the Western media, to destroy their societies and impose Islamic law upon them — and to commit violence to that end even while their overall goal remains out of reach. That effort goes under the general rubric of jihad.

Jihad (Arabic for "struggle") is a central duty of every Muslim. Muslim theologians have spoken of many things as jihads: the struggle within the soul, defending the faith from critics, supporting its growth and defense financially, even migrating to non-Muslim lands for the purpose of spreading Islam. But violent jihad is a constant of Islamic history and a central element of Islamic theology. Many passages of the Qur'an and sayings of the Prophet Muhammad are used by jihad warriors today to justify their actions and gain new recruits. No major Muslim group has ever repudiated the doctrines of armed jihad. The theology of jihad, which denies unbelievers equality of human rights and dignity, is available today for anyone with the will and means to bring it to life.

In Islamic history and doctrine violent jihad is founded on numerous verses of the Qur'an — most notably, one known in Islamic theology as the "Verse of the Sword": "Then, when the sacred months have passed, slay the idolaters wherever ye find them, and take them (captive), and besiege them, and prepare for them each ambush. But if they repent and establish worship and pay the poor-due, then leave their way free. Lo! Allah is forgiving, merciful" (9:5). Establishing "regular worship" and paying the "poor-due" (zakat) means essentially that they will become Muslim, as these are two of the central responsibilities of every Muslim. Sahih Bukhari, which Muslims regard as the most trustworthy of all the many collections of traditions of Muhammad, records this statement of the Prophet: "Allah assigns for a person who participates in (holy battles) in Allah's Cause and nothing causes him to do so except belief in Allah and in His Messengers, that he will be recompensed by Allah either with a reward, or booty (if he survives) or will be admitted to Paradise (if he is killed in the battle as a martyr)."

Ibn Khaldun (1332-1406), a pioneering historian and philosopher, was also a legal theorist. In his renowned Muqaddimah, the first work of historical theory, he notes that "in the Muslim community, the holy war is a religious duty, because of the universalism of the Muslim mission and (the obligation to) convert everybody to Islam either by persuasion or by force." In Islam, the person in charge of religious affairs is concerned with "power politics," because Islam is "under obligation to gain power over other nations."

Violent jihad is a constant of Islamic history. The passages quoted above and many others like them form a major element of the motivation of jihad warriors worldwide today. No major Muslim group has ever repudiated the doctrines of armed jihad. The theology of jihad, with all its assumptions about unbelievers, lack of human rights and dignity, is available today as a justification for anyone with the will and the means to bring it to life.

Jihad Watch is dedicated to bringing public attention to the role that jihad theology and ideology play in the modern world and to correcting popular misconceptions about the role of jihad and religion in modern-day conflicts. By shedding as much light as possible on these matters, we hope to alert people of good will to the true nature of the present global conflict.

Jihad Watch also includes content once posted on Dhimmi Watch, formerly a separate page on this site, tracking dhimmitude. Dhimmitude is the status that Islamic law, the Sharia, mandates for non-Muslims, primarily Jews and Christians. Dhimmis, "protected people," are free to practice their religion in a Sharia regime, but are made subject to a number of humiliating regulations designed to enforce the Qur'an's command that they "feel themselves subdued" (Sura 9:29). This denial of equality of rights and dignity remains part of the Sharia, and, as such, are part of the legal superstructure that global jihadists are laboring to restore everywhere in the Islamic world, and wish ultimately to impose on the entire human race.

If dhimmis complained about their inferior status, institutionalized humiliation, or poverty, their masters voided their contract and regarded them as enemies of Islam, fair game as objects of violence. Consequently, dhimmis were generally cowed into silence and worse. It was almost unheard-of to find dhimmis speaking out against their oppressors; to do so would have been suicide. For centuries dhimmi communities in the Islamic world learned to live in peace with their Muslim overlords by acquiescing to their subservience. Some even actively identified with the dominant class, and became strenuous advocates for it.

Spearheaded by dhimmi academics and self-serving advocacy groups, that same attitude of chastened subservience has entered into Western academic study of Islam, and from there into journalism, school textbooks, and the popular discourse. One must not point out the depredations of jihad and dhimmitude; to do so would offend the multiculturalist ethos that prevails everywhere today. To do so would endanger chances for peace and rapprochement between civilizations all too ready to clash.

But in this era of global terrorism it must be said: this silence, this distortion, has become deadly. Before 9/11 it was easy to ignore and whitewash dhimmitude, but the atrocities changed the situation forever. In jihads throughout history, untold millions have died. Tens of millions have been uprooted from their homes.

Tens of millions have been stripped of their cultural identity. To continue to gloss over the destruction wrought by jihad ideology and its attendant evil of dhimmitude is today to play into the hands of jihadists, who have repeatedly vowed to dhimmify the West and destroy any recalcitrant elements. While jihadist groups, even with their global diffusion, are not strong enough to realize this goal by themselves, they have a potent and destructive ally, a genuine fifth column, in the dhimmi academics and dhimmi journalists they have recruited in the West. They have succeeded in confusing millions in the West into mistaking honesty and truthfulness for bigotry, and self-defense for oppression.

Before it's too late for Western Europe and the United States, which gave birth to the traditions of freedom and equality of rights for all that shine today as lights in the entire world, this must be stopped. Therefore Jihad Watch seeks to bring public attention to:

- The plight of the dhimmis, an immense but almost completely ignored ongoing scandal that continues in Muslim countries today;
- The plight of women under Sharia provisions, similar to conditions imposed on dhimmis, in the denial of equal rights and dignity;
- Slavery in Islamic lands, which continues today, justified by Sharia-'s dhimmi codes;
- The integral role of jihad and dhimmitude ideology in global terrorism today;
- The license that academic and journalistic whitewashes of dhimmitude gives to radical jihadist enemies of human rights for all.

Jihad Watch fights to ensure that deeds done in the darkness for so long will not continue to be done. The light of world attention is anathema to the proponents of jihad and dhimmitude: we have seen in recent years that women sentenced to stoning for adultery, often victims of rape unjustly accused thanks to Sharia laws disallowing rape victims' testimony, were freed following international outcry. Jihad Watch seeks to provoke similar, continuous and increasing outcry wherever and whenever the Sharia's institutionalized injustices threaten dhimmis and women.

May the truth prevail.

Videos of the week

Pat Condell - A guide to the dark side

How to be 'progressive'. Pat explains how all progressive roads lead to racism.

Website: www.patcondell.net Twitter: @patcondell

Hitler finds out he's not getting 72 virgins.

By @JihadistJoe

Pat Condell - Justice for Osama

One from the archives of Pat, released shortly after Bin Laden was killed.

@causticbob has a wonderful habit of offending everyone.

Whether you're black, white, yellow or brown. Male, female, gay, left wing, right wing, racist or stupid; You're a target.....

Abdul Majeed Goes to Heaven

Abdul Majeed, a co-pilot, fresh from killing over a hundred infidels when he crashed his commercial airliner into a mountain range, arrives at Heaven expecting to meet the prophet Muhammad and reap his reward of seventy-two virgins. He looks around and sees an old bearded man sitting behind a desk in front of a set of iridescent gates. He asks, "Muhammad?".

The old man replies, "No, Abdul. I am Peter. I am the gatekeeper to Heaven. Muhammad is higher up" and points to steps that lead upward into the clouds.

Abdul is so excited that Muhammad rates higher than Saint Peter in Heaven and he runs to the steps and scales them two at a time until he reaches the next level of Heaven. When he gets to the top, he is in a large room and sees another bearded man. Again he asks, "Are you Muhammad?".

The bearded man answers, "No, I am Moses, the bringer of the Ten Commandments. Muhammad is higher up in Heaven" and points to another set of stairs. Abdul is ecstatic. The prophet is even higher than Moses! Abdul runs to the stairs and scales them as quickly as he can.

When he reaches the top he finds another room, larger than the last. In this room is another bearded man. Abdul approaches the bearded man and again asks, "Are you Muhammad?".

This bearded man answers, "No, I am Jesus, the son of God. I died for your sins. Muhammad is higher up in Heaven" and points to yet another set of stairs.

Abdul is beside himself. Here is proof. Muhammad is higher than Jesus! He dashes to the steps and starts to climb but the previous steps start taking their toll on poor Abdul. When he reaches the top, he is spent. He can barely move. His mouth is parched. His legs ache. He is sweating profusely. But he is in the most magnificent room any being could imagine. And in the center on a glorious throne sits a bearded man. Abdul knows this must be Muhammad. He approaches and gasps, "Are you Muhammad?".

The holy man answers, "No, I am the Lord, thy God. You look thirsty, would you like something cold to drink?". Abdul answers, "Yes please my Lord".

God turns around and yells, "Hey Muhammad, bring us two cokes".

Jesus at the Pearly Gates

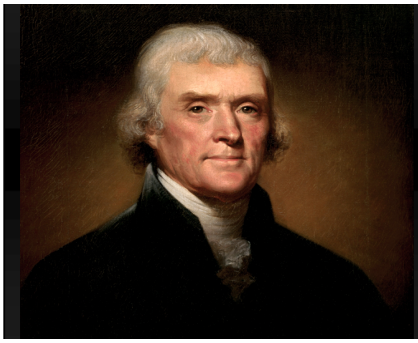
Saint Peter, as it is his job to do, is standing guard at the Pearly Gates. He's been standing there non-stop for at least a year but he really has to go to the bathroom. He can't hold it any longer so he calls Jesus.
"Hey, Jesus. Would you come over here and keep an eye on the gates of Heaven while I make a pit stop?"
Jesus agrees and takes his position behind the admission desk. It's not long, in the celestial time frame, before an old man approaches the gates. The old man is leading a donkey and Jesus notices that the donkey is loaded with carpenter's tools. Jesus, being very conscientious in his role as guardian of the gates, asks the man to talk about his life and why he should be admitted into Heaven.

The old man starts, "In English I would be called Joseph but I did not live in England or America. I have lived a modest life, earning an honest living by making things out of wood. Very few people remember me but most people remember my son. I say he's my son, but I was more of a [step] dad to him. He didn't come into this world in the usual way".

The old man continues with his story, "I sent him out into the world to be amongst the people. Many of those people ridiculed him. And even though he tried to be innocent and honest and perfect he associated with quite a few unsavoury characters. The reason I want to get into Heaven is to be reunited with him".

Jesus is flabbergasted by the old man's story. With a tear in his eye, he moves closer to the old man, looks deep into his eyes and whispers, "Is that you, father?".

The old man's face lights up. He looks at Jesus. "Pinocchio?"



LETTER: America has warred with Islam before

By Bruce Eden

Most people are unaware of the fact that over 200 years ago the United States had declared war on Islam and Thomas Jefferson led the charge.

At the height of the eighteenth century, Muslim pirates were the terror of the Mediterranean and a large area of the North Atlantic. They attacked every ship in sight, and held the crews for exorbitant ransoms. Those taken hostage were subjected to barbaric treatment and wrote heart-breaking letters home, begging their government and family members to pay whatever their captors demanded.
These extortionists of the high seas represented the Islamic nations of Tripoli, Tunis, Morocco, and Algiers — collectively referred to as the Barbary Coast — and presented a dangerous and unprovoked threat to the new American Republic.
Before the Revolutionary War, U.S. merchant ships had been under the protection of Great Britain. When the U.S. declared its independence and entered into war, the ships of the United States were protected by France. However, once the war was won, America had to protect its own fleets.

The birth of the U.S. Navy began in 1784. Seventeen years before he would become president, Thomas Jefferson became America's Minister to France. That same year, the U.S. Congress sought to appease its Muslim adversaries by following in the footsteps of European nations who paid bribes to the Barbary states rather than engaging them in war. In July of 1785, Algerian pirates captured American ships, and the Dye of Algiers demanded an unheard-of ransom of $60,000.

It was a plain and simple case of extortion, and Thomas Jefferson was vehemently opposed to any further payments. Instead, he proposed to Congress the formation of a coalition of allied nations who together could force the Islamic states into peace. A disinterested Congress decided to pay the ransom.

In 1786, Thomas Jefferson and John Adams met with Tripoli's ambassador to Great Britain to ask by what right his nation attacked American ships and enslaved American citizens, and why Muslims held so much hostility toward America, a nation with which they had no previous contacts. The two future presidents reported that Ambassador Sidi Haji Abdul Rahman Adja had answered that Islam "was founded on the Laws of their Prophet, that it was written in their Quran that all nations who would not have acknowledged their authority were sinners, that it was their right and duty to make war upon them wherever they could be found, and to make slaves of all they could take as Prisoners, and that every Musselman (Muslim) who should be slain in Battle was sure to go to Paradise."

Despite this stunning admission of premeditated violence on non-Muslim nations, as well as the objections of many notable American leaders, including George Washington, who warned that caving in was both wrong and would only further embolden the enemy, for the following 15 years the American government paid the Muslims millions of dollars for the safe passage of American ships or the return of American hostages.

The payments in ransom and tribute amounted to over 20 percent of the United States government annual revenues in 1800. Jefferson was disgusted. Shortly after his being sworn in as the third President of the United States in 1801, the Pasha of Tripoli sent him a note demanding the immediate payment of $225,000 plus $25,000 a year for every year forthcoming. Jefferson let the Pasha know, in no uncertain terms, what he could do with his demand. The Pasha responded by cutting down the flagpole at the American consulate and declared war on the United States.

A war with Tripoli lasted for four more years, and raged up again in 1815. The bravery of the U.S. Marine Corps in these wars led to the line "to the shores of Tripoli" in the Marine Hymn, and they would forever be known as "leathernecks" for the leather collars of their uniforms, designed to prevent their heads from being cut off by the Muslim scimitars when boarding enemy ships.

Islam, and what its Barbary followers justified doing in the name of their prophet and their god, disturbed Jefferson quite deeply. America had a tradition of religious tolerance; Jefferson, himself, had co-authored the Virginia Statute for Religious Freedom. But fundamentalist Islam was like no other religion the world had ever seen. A religion based on supremacism, whose holy book not only condoned but mandated violence against unbelievers, was unacceptable to him. His greatest fear was that someday this brand of Islam would return and pose an even greater threat to the United States.

PRAYER HACKER

Gods are very modern now and whilst they ignore all prayers, they like to keep them on file so when they are bored they can read through them for a good laugh.

My job is to hack into their servers to shed light on some of the things people pray for.

It's not fair that Gods should keep them all to themselves for their own personal amusement...

Some of our subscribers have been hacking divine servers for us this week. Here's a few examples of what they found...

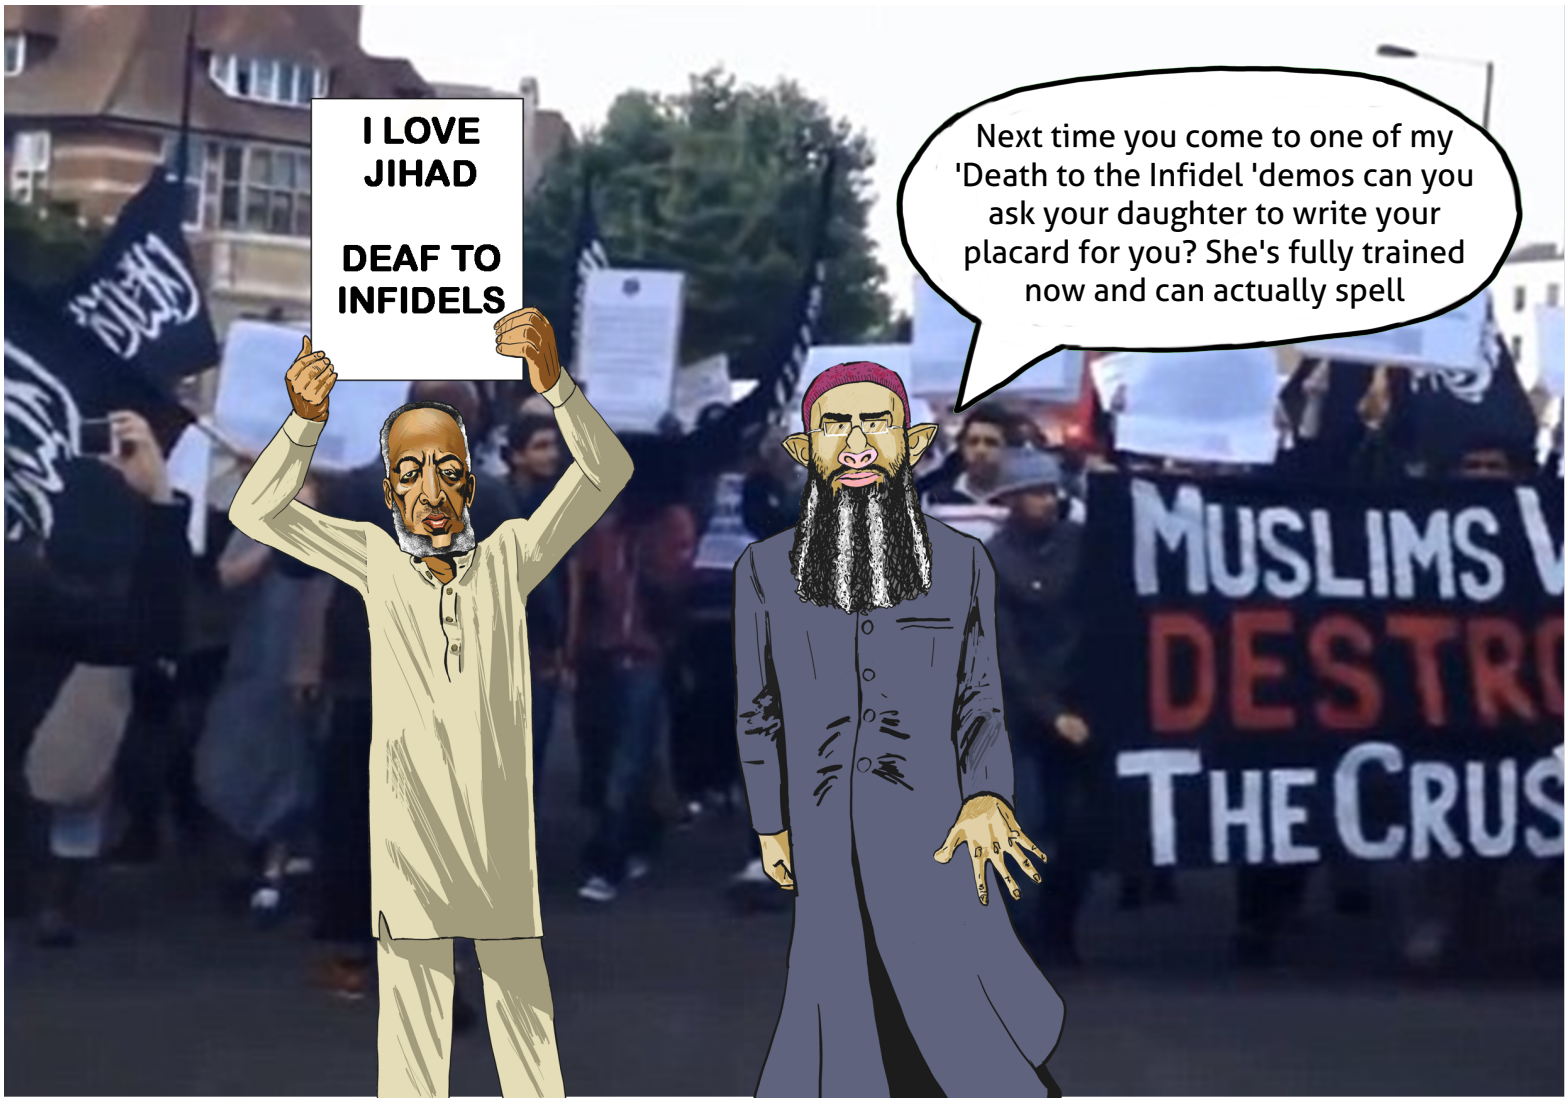
Dear Baby Jesus,

Please, please, please, can you smite everyone? Except Christians, but only two of them ... And smite all the creatures on Earth too, except for two of each of those, like a big arsed spring clean ... And put them all on a boat so they can survive smitage and start again. I know there may be a bit of incest and stuff, but it worked ok in the Deep South, and in the good book, so, yes please. PS. Can you make me and my mum the human non-smited please? She means a lot to me; well, not like that if you know what I mean, but needs must, er, kind of. Amen.

Dear Allah,

Hey you and me didn't we whip some ass last week? And hey I don't just mean little Aisha if you know what I mean. Big up to you. Hope you like the heads etc. All according to your book as always. We are here to do your stuff and it is much more fun fighting the infidels and shouting your name than sitting in double chemistry in back in Lambeth... But damn it's hot. Hope to see you soon... But not too soon if you know what I mean. This bloody sand gets everywhere.

Dear God, What seriously? What the fuck were you thinking letting them give the Brits to that gay guy and the ginger haired tit? I mean seriously I thought you and me were cool like mates or something. They are out humping their fans and I am staying pure to you. Haven't I brought the gospel to millions with Jesus is my Homey? and what do I get? Nothing. Jesus, sometimes I just feel that maybe "the gift that keeps on giving" has just stopppppp... oh now if that was in C sharp... Let's see... The gift that keeps on giving is..... Oh Lord you are truly my inspiration... Just let me get this down and I'll get right back, oh and please a Brit next year? Please.

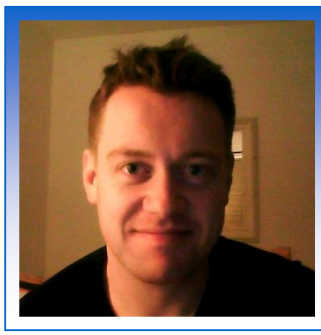


If you ever needed conclusive proof that Islamophobia exists then all you have to do is take a look at the response of the Government, media, progressive and apologist hoards to the Jihadi ISIS bride incident. All the usual suspects waded in with their self perceived moral superiority by supporting her extremist father when he blamed everyone but himself for his daughter joining ISIS.

The Government, education system and even her internet provider were blamed for "not spotting the signs" that resulted in her jetting off to become part of the regional genocide. In fact they missed a trick by not actually blaming Israel, erratic weather patterns, the solar eclipse and Chelsea getting knocked out of the Champion League.

Talking of Chelsea, if it's not bad enough that they have racist fans, now they have terrorist supporting fans too.

Her father even had the audacity to claim he had no idea where she got these views from and why she had become radicalised and, under the weight of pressure from the progressive mob demanding social justice, the spineless policy enforcers (Police) actually issued a public apology!!!!



Alnicoll Atheist @Alnicoll

30 something guitarist. Against racism, and Political Islam.
For equality, animal rights and human rights.

The sham surrounding the 3 British ISIS brides

Last month 3 British Muslim girls fled to Syria to join ISIS and support the terrorist group. The families of these girls demanded an apology from the MET Police for "not doing enough" to stop them, and they had "no idea" why their daughters would have any interest in ISIS, Islamists or radical Islam. They even blamed the internet company for not tracking their browsing history.

The media, Police and Government were obsessed with portraying this family as innocent, peaceful Muslims quietly living their lives and we should have sympathy for them. The media did a fantastic job of convincing the public.

The UK Prime Minister, David Cameron, said internet companies and airlines should have done more, and "every school, every university, every college, every community (should) recognise they have a role to play". He then bizarrely added, "We all have a role to play in stopping people from having their minds poisoned by this appalling death cult". According to the UK Government, everyone should be responsible except the girls' families. The issue was raised on Question Time and even in the House of Commons.

However, some were sceptical why the parents were so quick to project the blame outwards.

On the 10th March 2015, Sir Bernard Hogan-Howe (MET Police Commissioner) and Mark Rowley (Assistant Commissioner) granted them their apology live on TV in front of the Home Affairs Committee. The story was consumed by the media for weeks with an overly sympathetic bias towards the family being "victims".

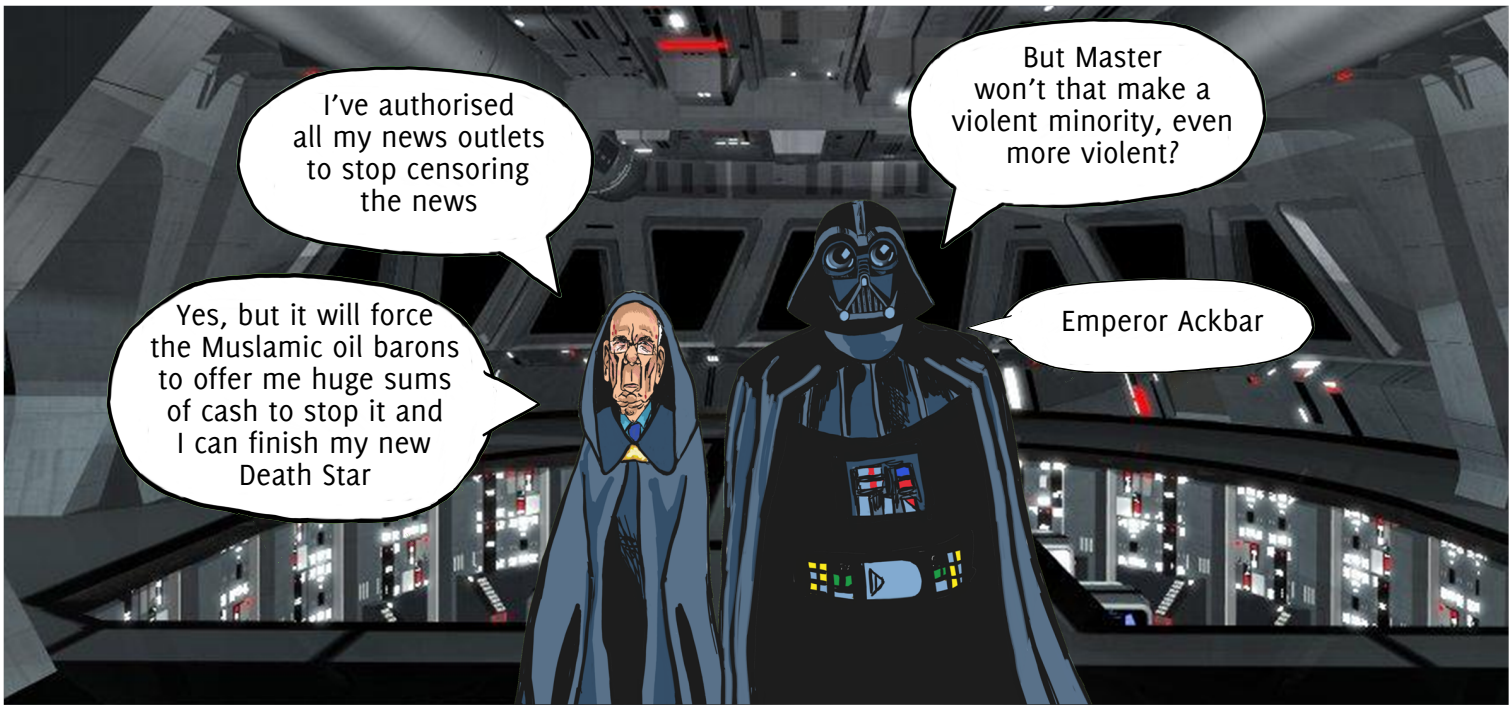
This next video, however, contradicts what the media were publishing. It shows Hussen Abase (the Father of one of the girls that the Police Commissioner apologised to) in a different light to the man portrayed in the media and by David Cameron. It shows him calling for Jihad against the West, death to America, UK and Israel, an end to democracy and world domination of Islam. ISIS flags are clearly visible in the crowd as they burned the US and Israeli flags on the streets of London, led by hate preacher Anjem Choudary.

I have zero analytical skills and recognised him immediately. I can only conclude that the Police are either incompetent or corrupt. I fear they're both.

We need to stop this ridiculous appeasement and need a Government that will either grow a spine, or step aside so real leaders can sort this mess out.

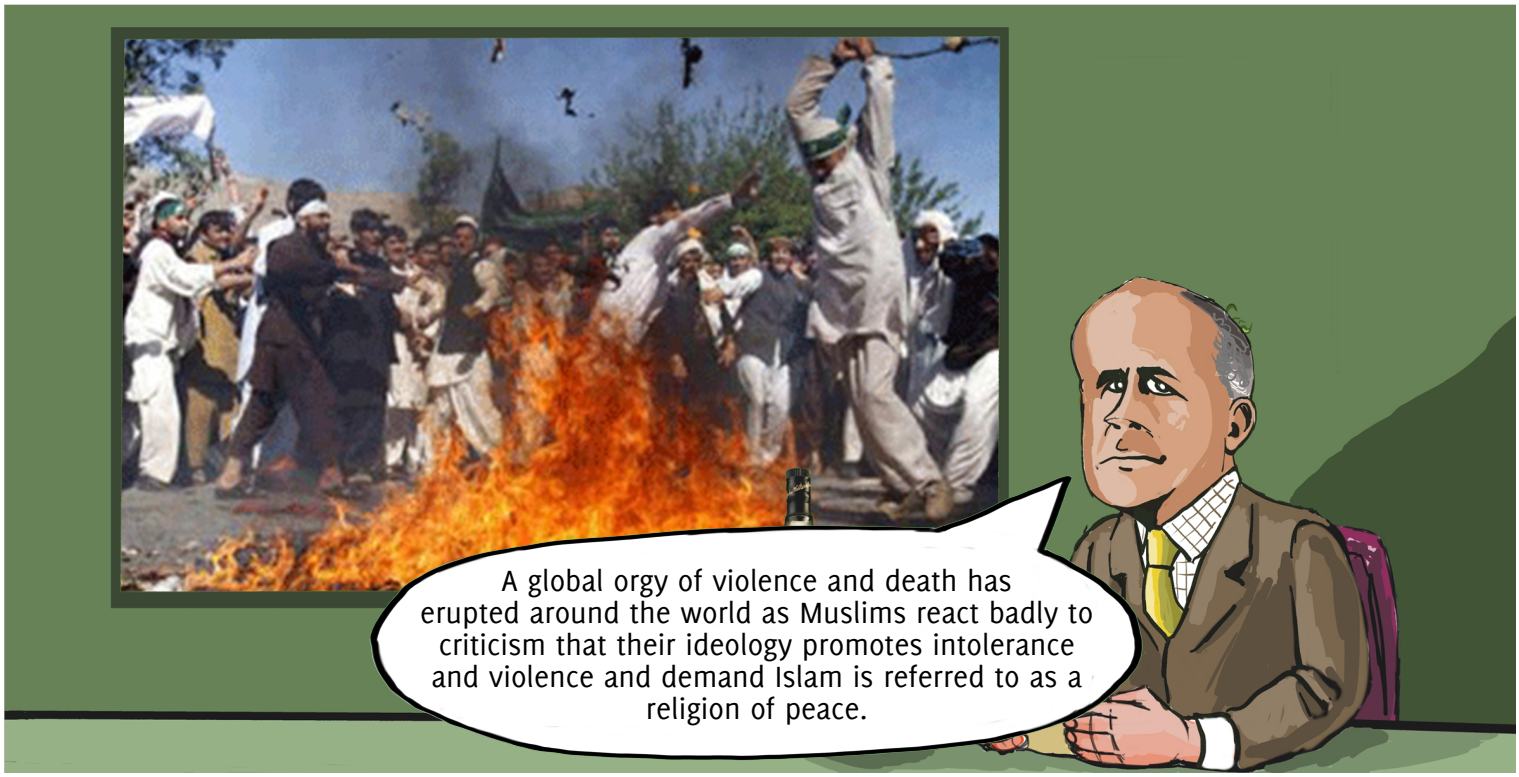
SPEECH WARS

Episode seven. Emperor Murdoch is plotting to raise funds for a new Death Star after the Secular Alliance destroyed his last one. His plans are bound to upset the Muslamic hoards, but it's a calculated risk that will force his corrupt oil baron friends to stump up the cash he needs...

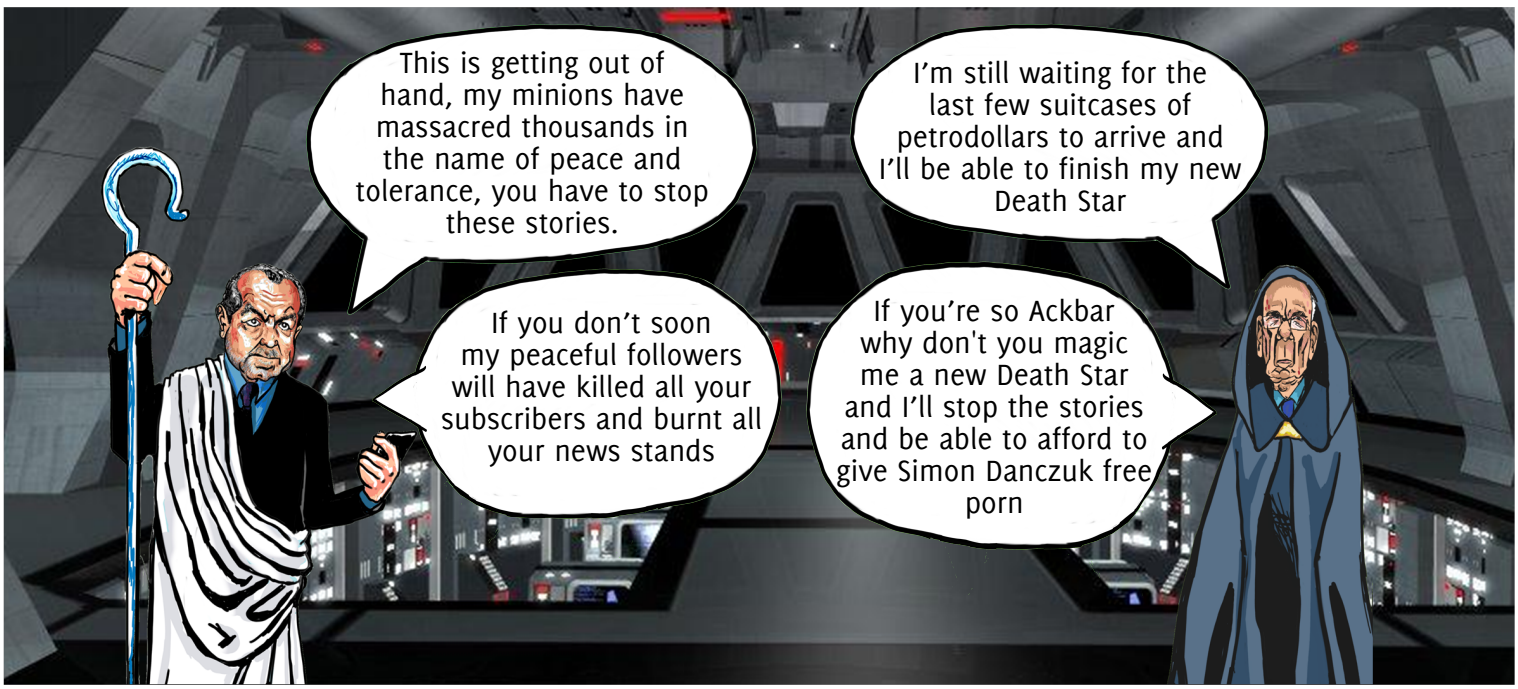


Destroying the Evil Emperor's Death Star has worked my apprentice
Yes, the Police have already arrested 8,000 grooming gangs and the dhimmi government is considering banning blasphemy laws

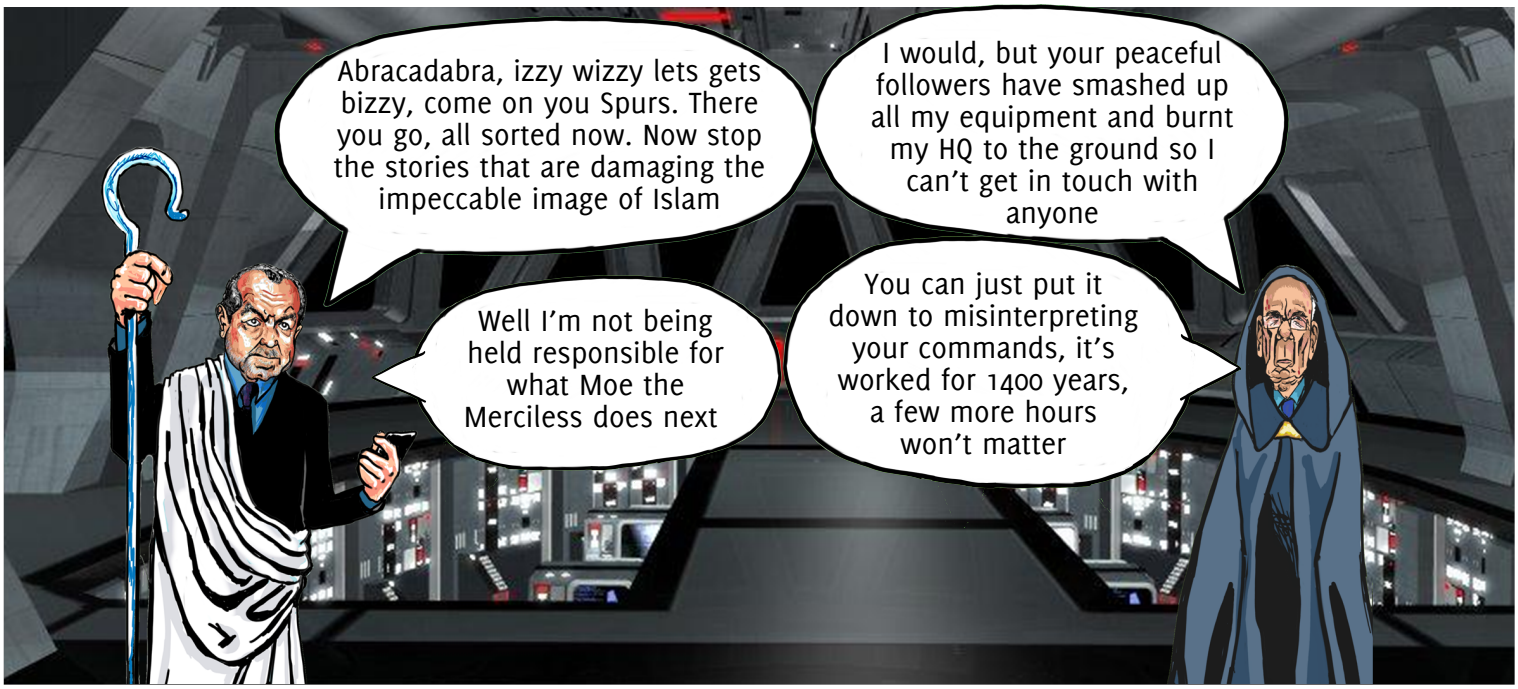
It's racist and islamophobic to confirm that Muslamic rape gang members are Muslims
Free speech is hate speech, we love our pedo prophet
You should have brought your daughter along to complete her radicalisation
DEATH TO MURDOCH AND ALL INFIDELS



A global orgy of violence and death has erupted around the world as Muslims react badly to criticism that their ideology promotes intolerance and violence and demand Islam is referred to as a religion of peace.



This is getting out of hand, my minions have massacred thousands in the name of peace and tolerance, you have to stop these stories.
I'm still waiting for the last few suitcases of petrodollars to arrive and I'll be able to finish my new Death Star
If you don't soon my peaceful followers will have killed all your subscribers and burnt all your news stands
If you're so Ackbar why don't you magic me a new Death Star and I'll stop the stories and be able to afford to give Simon Danczuk free porn



Abracadabra, izzy wizzy lets gets bizzy, come on you Spurs. There you go, all sorted now. Now stop the stories that are damaging the impeccable image of Islam
I would, but your peaceful followers have smashed up all my equipment and burnt my HQ to the ground so I can't get in touch with anyone
Well I'm not being held responsible for what Moe the Merciless does next
You can just put it down to misinterpreting your commands, it's worked for 1400 years, a few more hours won't matter

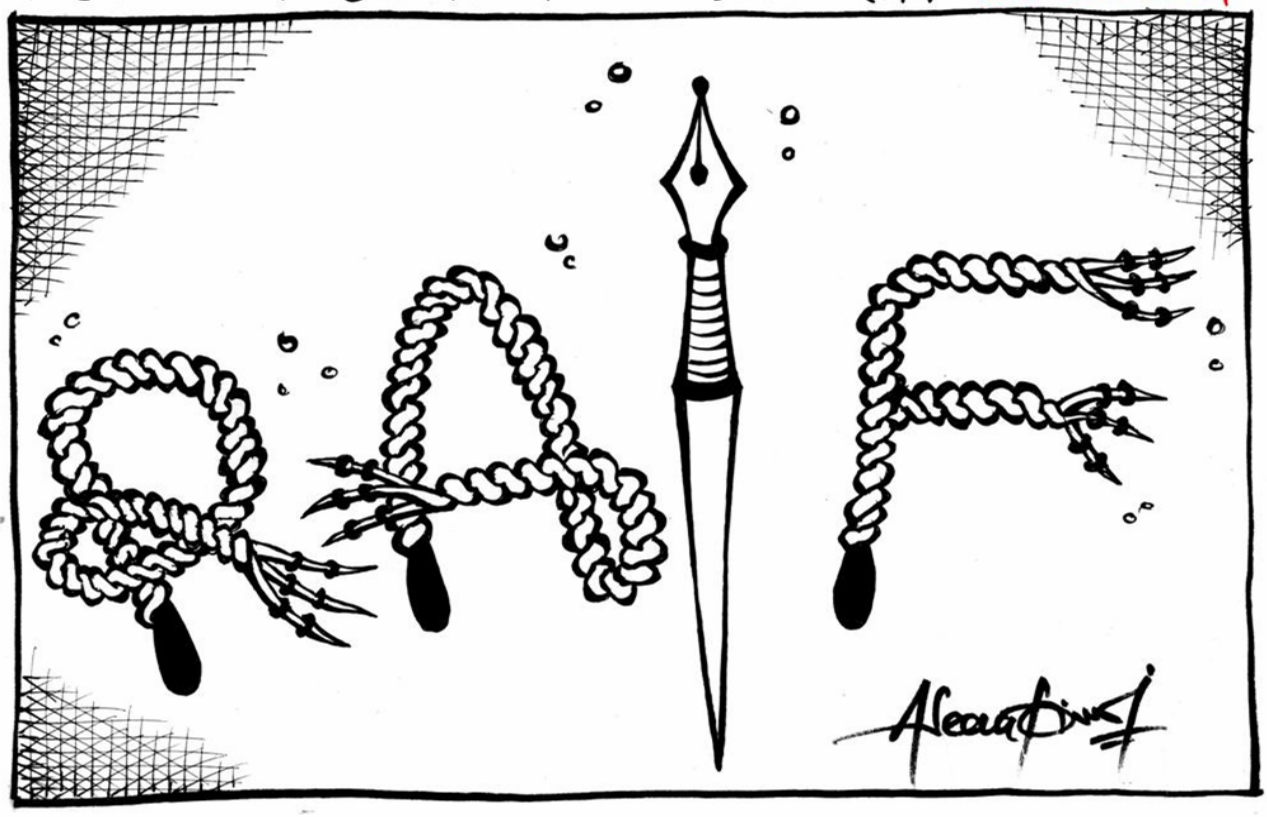
By the power of Allan I will blast his new Death Star into a million pieces using my industrial strength Muslamic ray gun. ALLAN ACKBAR

We have just received this picture that originated from the Muslamic Secret Service. Emperor Murdoch's brand new Death Star has been destroyed. So that's two in two weeks. LOL.

Join us next week when the Secular Alliance are determined to reveal the true identity of Darth Vader. Who could he be? and what dirty little secrets could he be hiding?

FREE RAIF BADAWI

A CARTOON AGAINST EVERY LASH (15) #FreeRaif



A CARTOON AGAINST EVERY LASH (16) #FreeRaif

Aseem Trivedi is an independent cartoonist and free speech activist from New Delhi, India. He is creating a cartoon for each of the 50 lashes Raif Badawi has received. Above is number 7 in his series of 50. Vive Charlie will be featuring his cartoons each week so please follow him on twitter.
@aseem_trivedi

Muslamic Whispers

We have to stop Moe, he's like a dog with two dicks banging anything and everything

Messages
Big Allan
Details
THOU SHALT NOT COMMIT ADULTERY

LOL, I'll tell him he can have permanent wives, temporary wives and child brides

Angel Gabe

I've ordered my followers to fill my cave with loads of child brides. They won't have anything to compare my tiny rape jihad tackle to

OK, girls I know you are all only 9 years old, but thankfully girls mature early in the desert so it's OK for me to deflower you all

TWEET WALL

A selection of our favourite tweets

Old Holborn
@Holbornlolz
Following

My right to free speech trumps your non existent right to not be offended.

Every. Single. Time.

Implicit in Right to Freedom of Expression is

RIGHT TO OFFEND

I have the Right to

Offend your sacred symbols
Offend your sensibilities
Offend your emotions and feelings
Offend your country, your institutions and your governments
Offend your leaders, your political parties and administrators
Criticize and ridicule your religion, your customs and your traditions
Hate your guts and what you stand for

Useful Idiot
@Usefulidiot
Following

I'm so proud of our tolerance

We'll be able to tell our grandkids about it on our weekly visits to the jizya office

Joseph Al-Qaeda
@JihadistJoe
Following

More and more Muslamic women are defying Muslamic tradition & getting jobs

Fatima works as an artwork display stand

Joseph Al-Qaeda
@JihadistJoe
Fol

Here's an insight into how we Muslims interpret "integrating peacefully" into western secular societies....

Give us our own space

IF I COME across as a person extreme in my views I do apologise but I think it is about time we as Muslims living in the United Kingdom should be given our own areas where we can live and support ourselves.

These areas should not be governed by local authority they should be controlled by local Muslim people.

This should include policing and justice systems and the strict rule of Islam should prevail in these areas.

I think we should also be able to educate our young people in things important to our community and not about kings and queens long since dead and the industrial revolution etc, this has no relevance to British children let alone children from other faiths.

I feel all this would be a good thing and help Muslim people a great deal.

JHAVINDA KAZIM
Broad Street
Swindon

TWEET WALL

A selection of our favourite tweets

Old Holborn
@Holbornlolz
Following

@KTHopkins has been reported to the Police by a Labour MP for calling these Muslim paedophiles Muslim. UK, 2015.

Simon Danczuk @SimonDanczuk
Been knocking on doors tonight in #Milnrow, great response.

Joseph Al-Qaeda
@JihadistJoe

.@SimonDanczuk One can only assume you've not yet knocked on the door of a grooming gang victim....

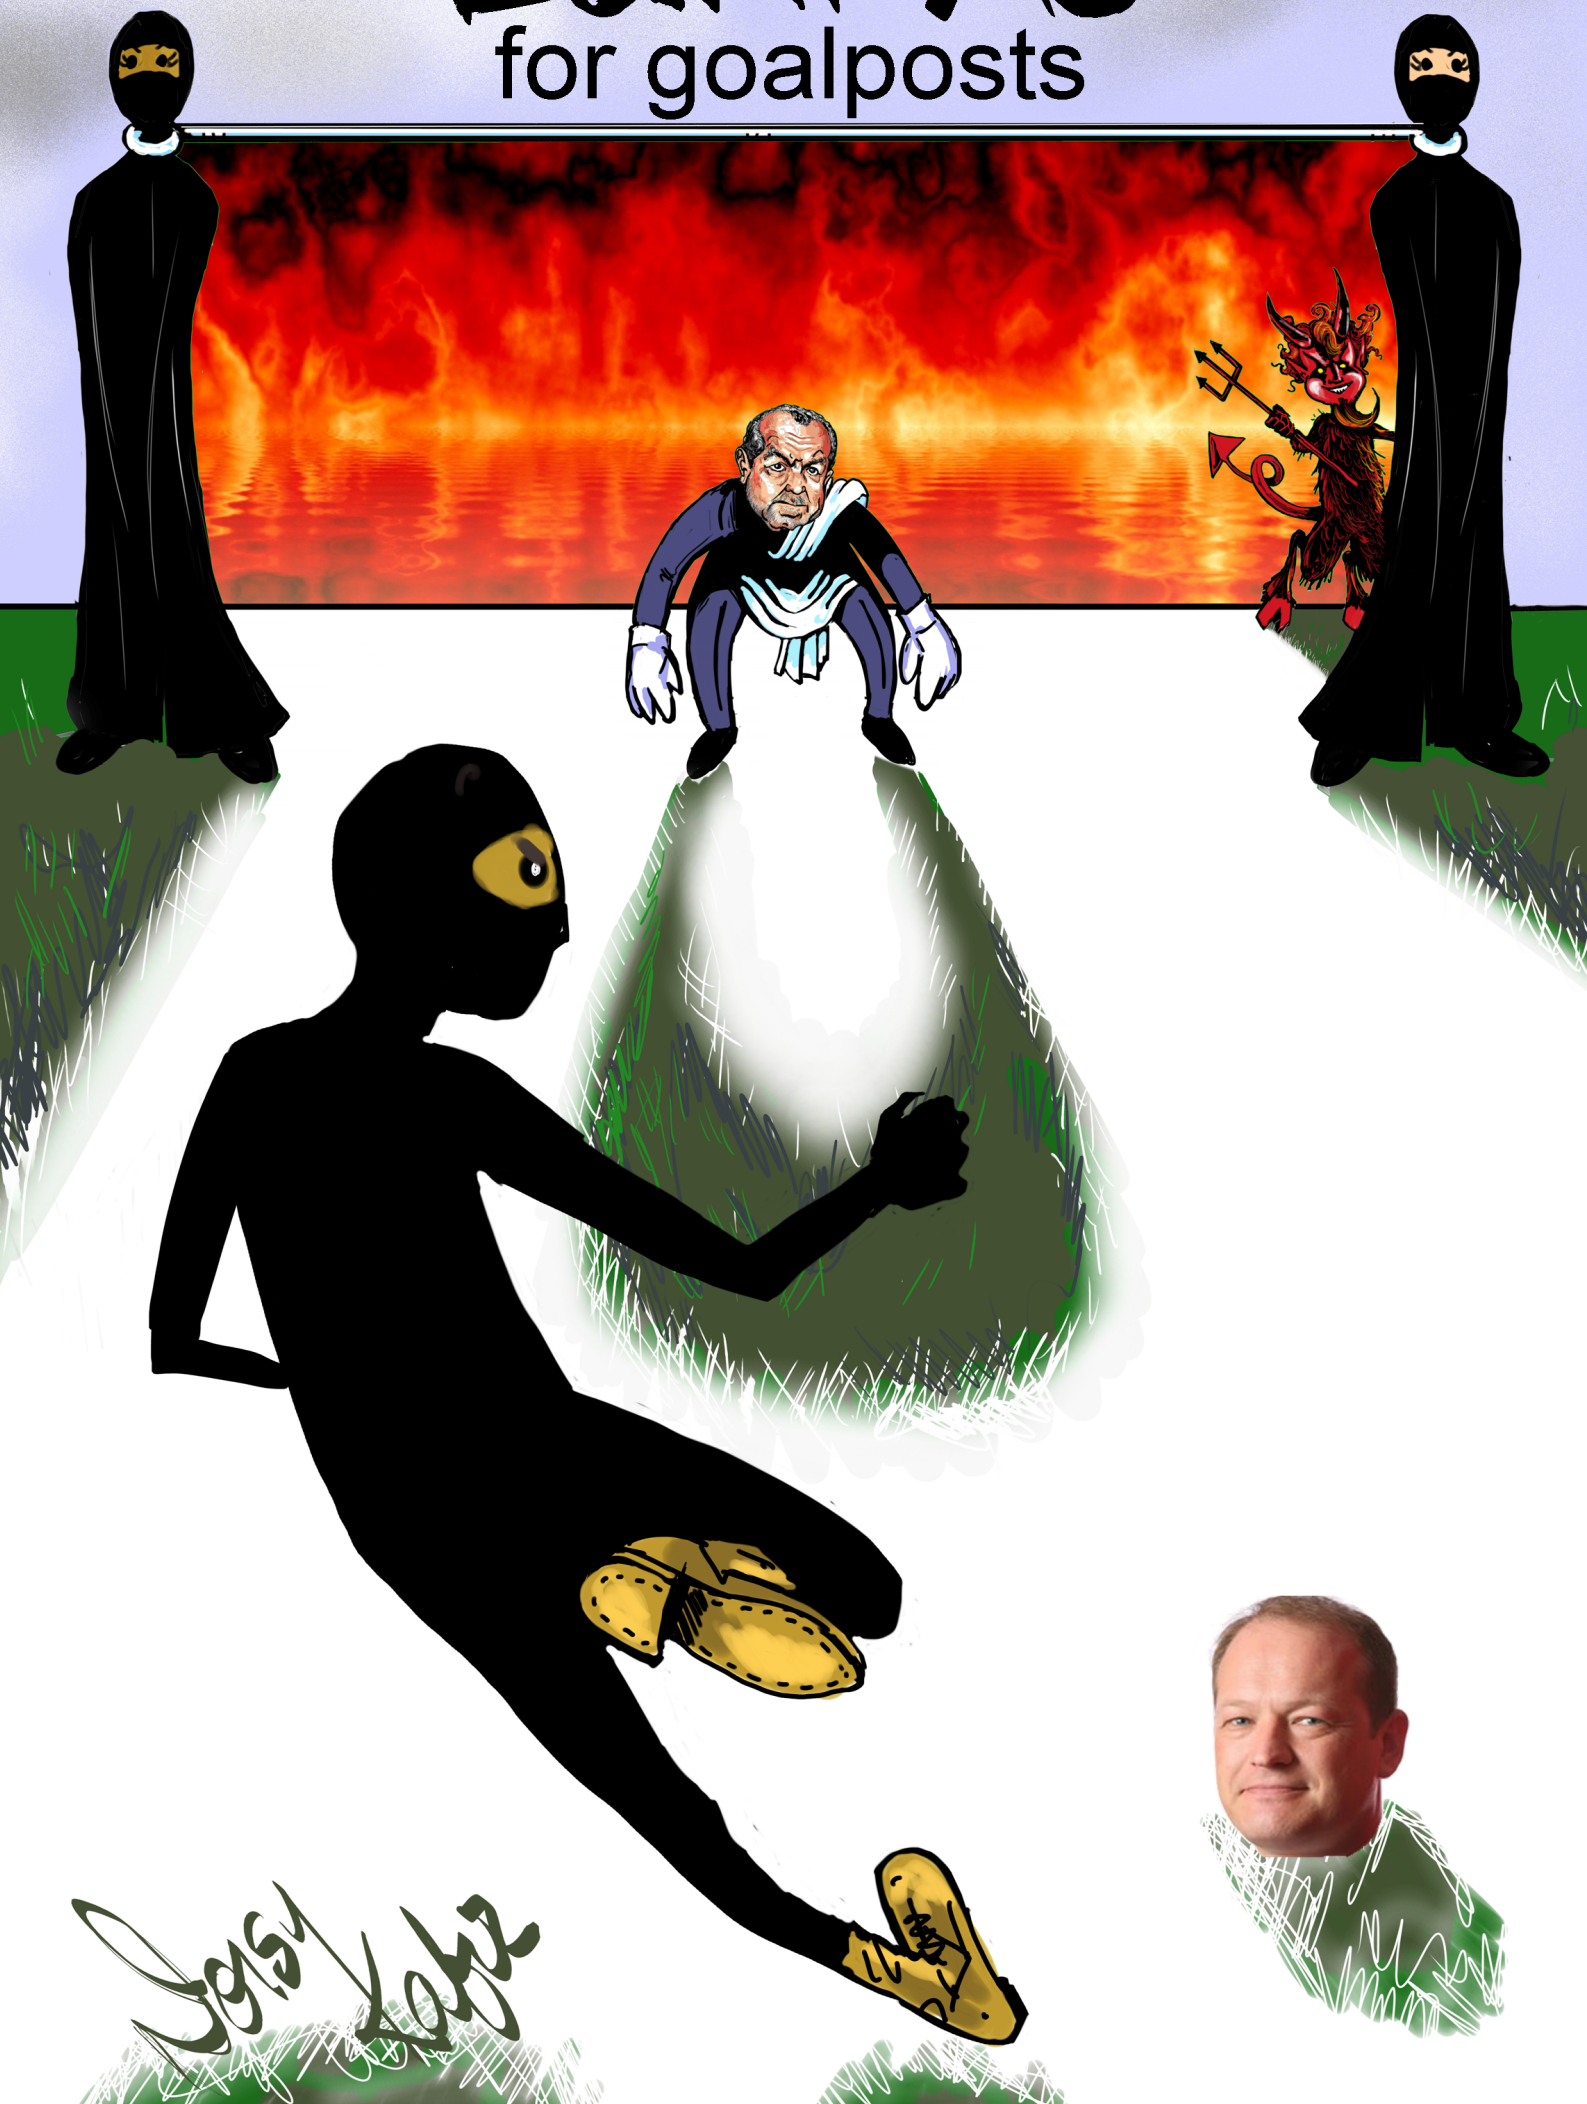
Richard Dawkins
@RichardDawkins
Following

Pew Research Centre 2013: 75% of Pakistan Muslims polled favour death penalty for leaving Islam. It is not hate speech to cite a fact.

Ricky Gervais
@rickygervais
Follow

Remember, if morons weren't allowed freedom of speech we wouldn't realise how smart we are.

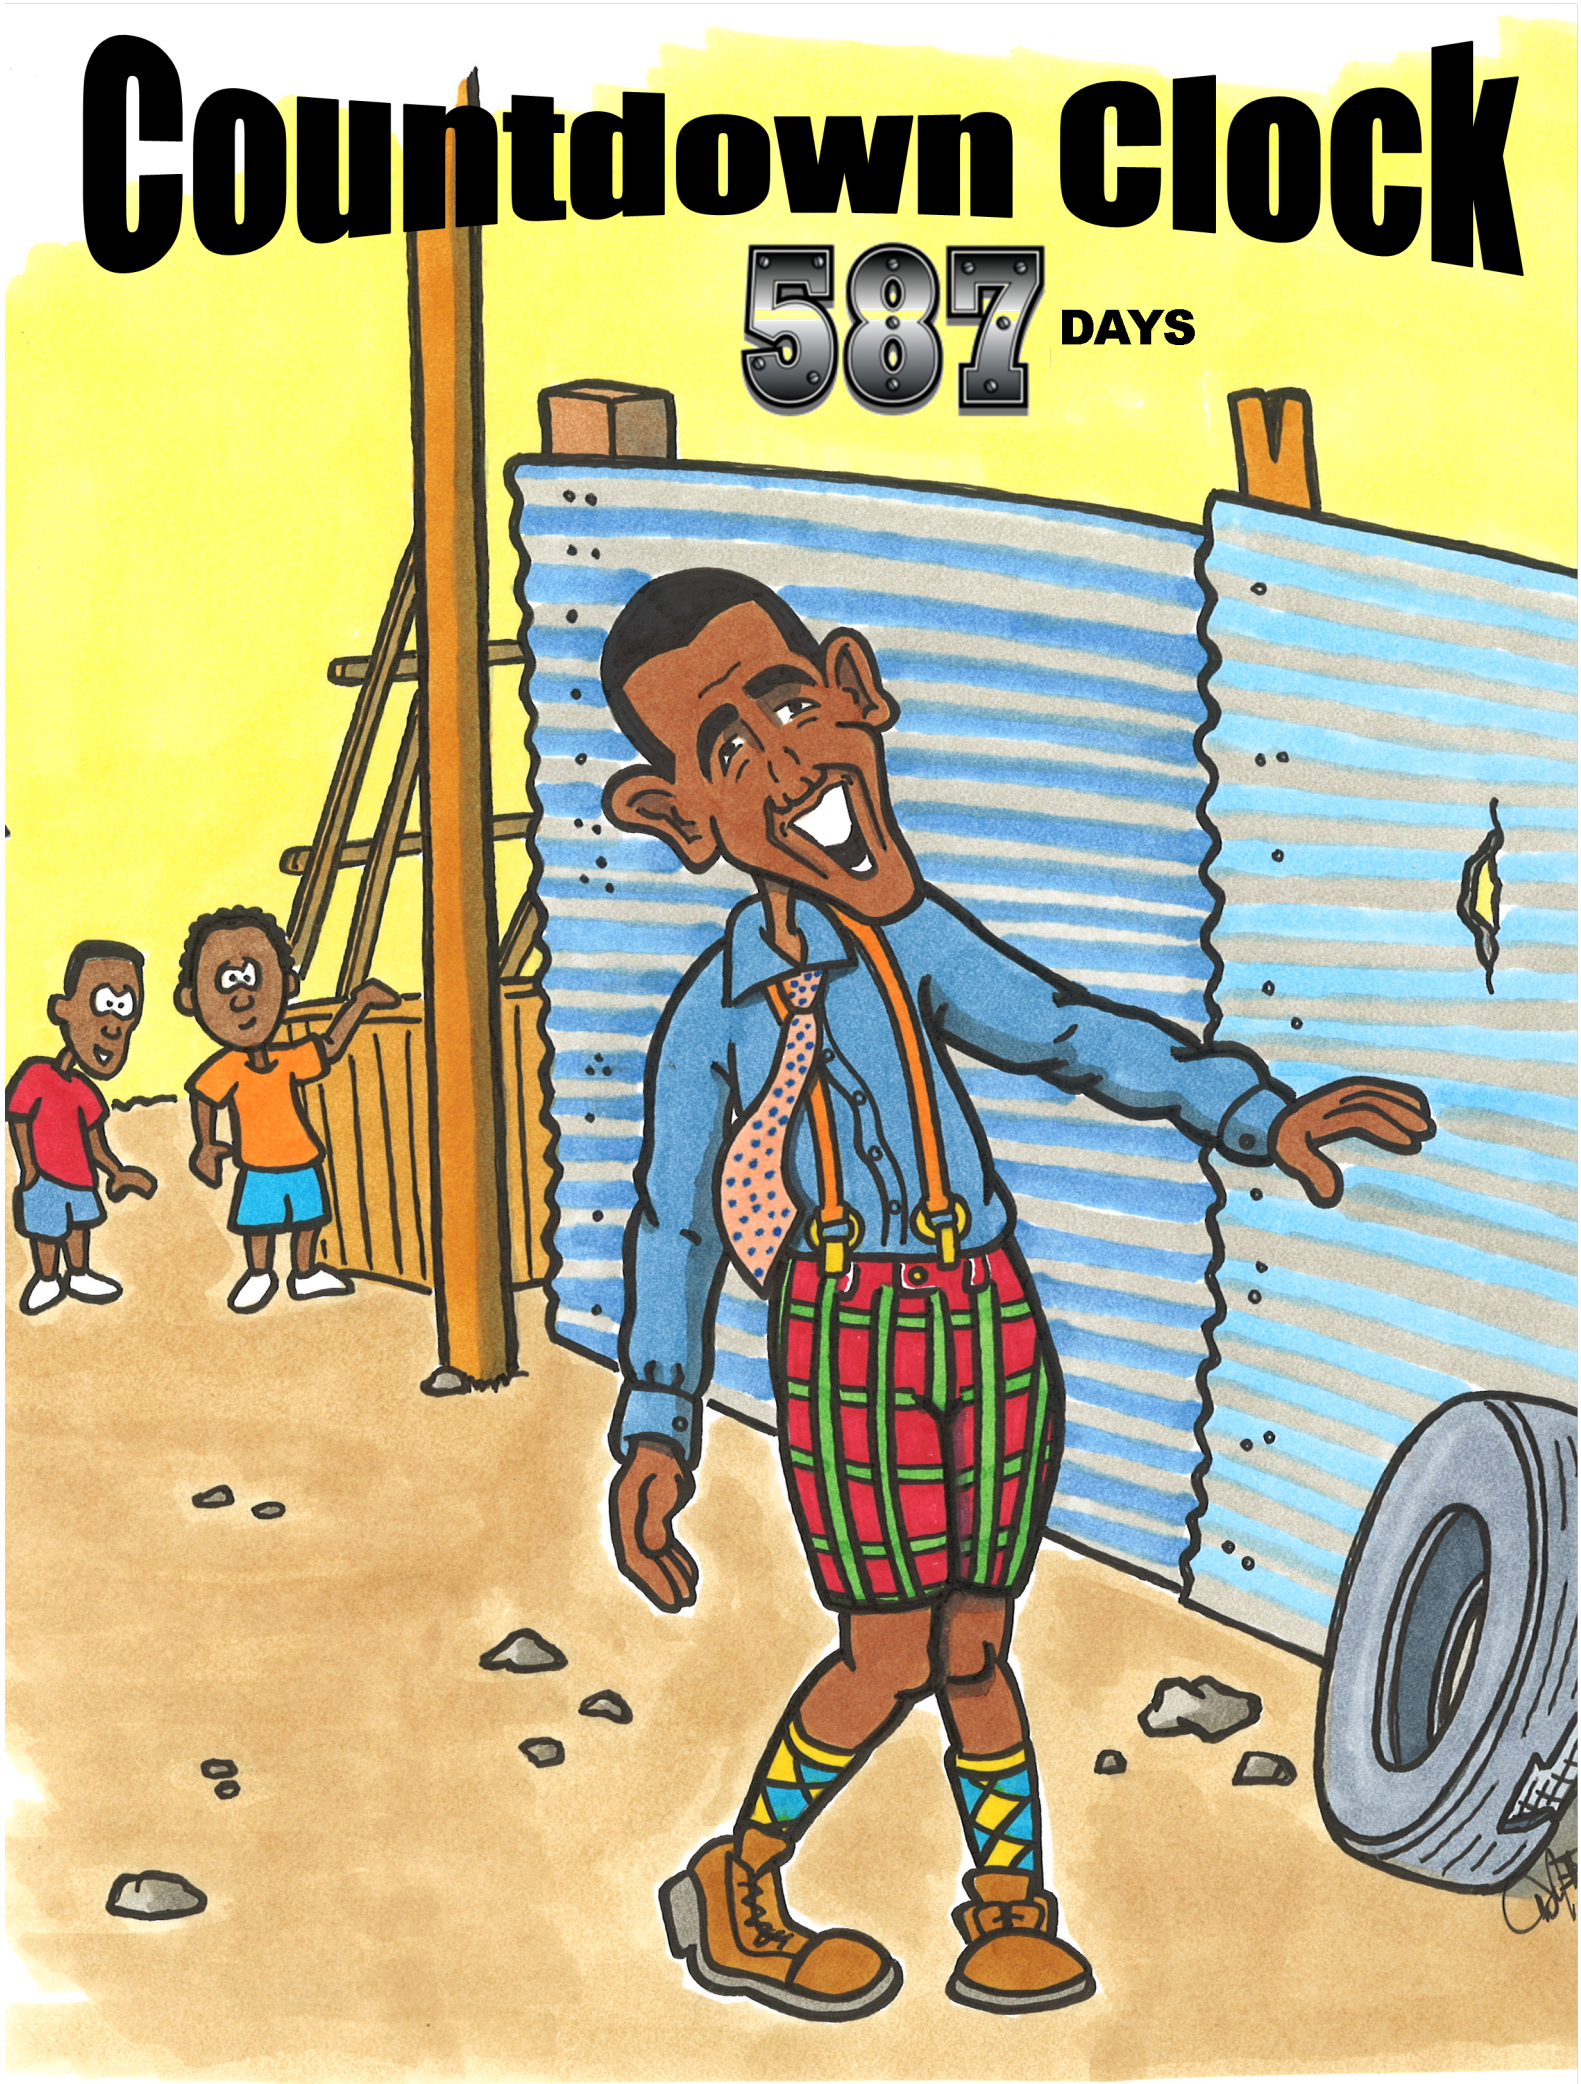
BURKAS
for goalposts



ASSHOLE OF THE WEEK

This week's clear winner is asshole Simon Danczuk. Not only did he fly a flag of insult into the faces of 1400 victims of rape, he then reported Katie Hopkins for pointing out that the rapists where Pakistani (fact). And then to put a cherry of the top of his turd of a cake, he made an announcement that freedom of speech is not a right but a privilege. Not something that thousands died for would probably agree with... ASSHOLE!!!

Countdown Clock



UNTIL A VILLAGE IN KENYA GETS ITS IDIOT BACK